The Cyprus Cremation Society Appoints Facultatieve Technologies as Cremator Supplier for The Island Crematorium

Larnaca, Cyprus – The Cyprus Cremation Society is pleased to announce the appointment of Facultatieve Technologies as the principal cremator supplier for The Island Crematorium, scheduled to open in 2030.

Following an extensive review of leading international manufacturers, Facultatieve Technologies has been selected for its global reputation, engineering excellence, and longstanding commitment to environmentally responsible cremation systems. The company is recognised worldwide for delivering advanced cremation technology that meets and exceeds strict European emission standards.

The Island Crematorium will incorporate a modern hybrid cremator system, designed to maximise fuel efficiency while significantly reducing emissions compared to traditional cremation equipment. The hybrid technology offers enhanced combustion performance, lower energy consumption, and advanced filtration capabilities to ensure full compliance with EU air quality regulations.

Ian Hussein, Founder of The Cyprus Cremation Society, said:

“We are committed to delivering a facility that reflects the highest standards of environmental stewardship, technical excellence, and dignity. Facultatieve Technologies shares our values of innovation, reliability, and sustainability, and we are proud to partner with an internationally respected supplier as we move towards our 2030 opening.”

The appointment marks a significant milestone in the development of The Island Crematorium, reinforcing the Society's commitment to responsible design, transparent operations, and environmental protection.

The Cyprus Cremation Society continues to work closely with engineers, environmental consultants, and regulatory authorities to ensure the project meets all planning, environmental, and operational standards.
