The Will Centers

Inside of the middle or subconscious layer of each of the seven major chakra centers is another triple sphere pattern. It is roughly 1/3 the size of the other chakras, is a triple sphere pattern, and represents the Will Center. The will center is responsible for bringing forth any act of intention. If any will center is impaired, then one's will to intend is also impaired. For those that have opened up five additional chakras in the ascent towards Bodhisattva, the new chakras do not have a will center of their own. The seven will centers are as follows.

1. The Will to Live (first chakra center at base of the spine)

This will center involves the will to remain grounded unto Mother Earth and for the physical form to continue to live. In other terms, this will center assists in preventing accidents or creating long-term diseases that would end the life.

2. The Will to Feel (second or pelvic chakra center)

This will center involves the will to feel one's emotions, and also feel the energetic dynamics of the chakras, subtle bodies and grid work of the etheric body and light body. An underdeveloped will to feel means that one is less sensitive to the non-physical as sensitivity requires an ability to feel. The more sensitive one is, the more greatly one will perceive imbalances in the field, subtle bodies and chakra centers, allowing one to rectify the problem before it becomes a physical problem in ascension.

3. The Will to Hold Boundaries (third or solar plexus chakra center)

This will center involves the ability to create and carve boundaries for oneself to ascend within. There are many boundaries now in the new consensus for ascending humans that prevent the forces of the dark still dancing amongst those in the old consensus from overrunning one's field and preventing one's ascent. If this will center is not in-tact, then one's boundaries will not hold.

4. The Will to Love (fourth or heart chakra center)

This will center involves the ability to love as an active expression of compassion in action. Compassion in action is a non-codependent form of energy flow in which one's lotus center opens in the heart region beyond initiation 4,200. Such energy flow blesses all within a 300-foot radius of oneself with the love of one's soul, source and I AM presence. If the will to love is impaired, one is unable to express compassion in action.

5. The Will to Manifest (fifth or throat chakra region)

The will to manifest assists in the modulation of sexual energy flow that allows one's dream to step down the dimensions into one's physical life dance. If the fifth will center is impaired or missing, one's will to manifest, dream one's dream and live to experience it is likewise impaired. The will to manifest is also associated with the physical steps necessary to see a dream to fruition. Those with an impaired will center will dream and dream and dream, but never take the necessary steps to actualize the dream.

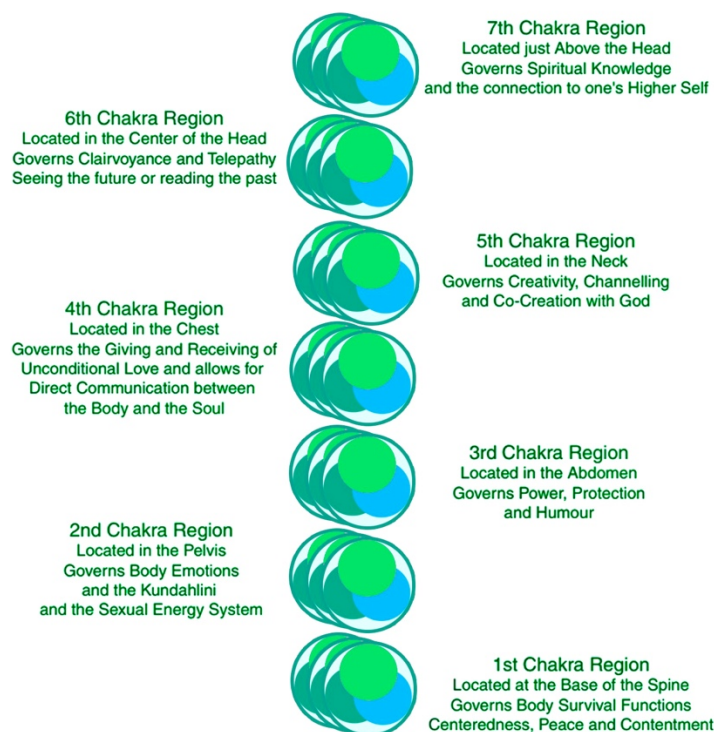

6. The Will to See (sixth or head chakra region)

The will to see allows one to perceive clearly beyond the veils of illusion that surround oneself or desire to confuse the journey of continued ascension. If this will center is not in-tact, one will have difficulty seeing the truth. If one perceives not the truth, one may find oneself going down the path towards death rather than ascension.

7. The Will to Know and Ascend (seventh or crown chakra region)

This will center allows one to know what one requires understanding in order to ascend. If this will center is impaired, one's ability to ascend is also impaired along with one's ability to integrate one's knowledge. One's knowledge in ascension can be equated to biological information necessary to rise in vibration, along with a blueprint for energetic changes to create an ever-expansive field that more and more soul can sit within. If the knowledge is impaired, the biological changes will fail to come forth, along with the energetic changes necessary to hold more soul, and one may find oneself schism over segments of one's ascension or creating an incomplete ascent.

Managing the Will Centers

The will centers should begin to be constructed after initiation 2,200 as the chakras become triple sphere in nature. One will see that one will have a triple sphere internal to the other three chakras that represents the will center. One can also see or muscle test or pendulum if one of such will centers is missing, and strive to retrieve it from whomever one has given it to in a karmic encounter. One can also see where one's will centers have become intertwined and intermixed with others that one knows.

Much like the subtle bodies that have become intertwined with the energy of others, along with chakras, grid work, sexual energy, and the light body, one is forever separating oneself in ascension. So, this will also be so for the will center. A will center with a lot of energy from others will not function properly. Furthermore, an undersized or missing will center may not function at all. Generally, Asur'Ana has learned to give the following command in relation to undoing intertwining:

I intend to dissolve all grid work in all energy flow in my auric field, chakra system, subtle bodies, grid work and light body that is not of my energy signature. I return such energy to whomever it belongs to. I retrieve my energy from all others that I have given grid work unto. I now reweave my own field with my own grid work founded upon my own energy signature.
