Supportive Body Level Consciousness or Awareness

What role does body level consciousness have? Body level consciousness is that which the angel's access in the reweaving of grid work into the Language of Light or primary tones of creation. In ascension, gradually all grid work that is black, brown, or gray is rewoven to be primary toned; usually this occurs in the space between. Furthermore, positive ley lines and meridians are rewoven to be the pastel colors of the Language of Light. It is body level consciousness that directs the flow of energy through the meridians and chakras along with subtle bodies to sustain the movement of the field. This is the purpose of body level consciousness.

Body level consciousness also has awareness about the state of the physical form. It is body level consciousness that can tell one if a part of the form is becoming diseased in ascension: and also, what to do to allow the disease to be offset by the resurrection of the related part of the form. Body level consciousness has awareness of the karma and keys that are held in the scar tissue of the form, and can relay this information as the cells become crystalline to the angelic realm or akashic record keeper.

Body level consciousness can also inform one of what one requires eating or consuming in terms of food or herbs to support the ascent and prevent the development of disease. It is generally, the angels in the form of the akashic record keeper, biological record keeper and ancestral record keeper that communicates with the body level awareness and then relay such information to the consciousness of the form.

Directing One's Spiritual Lessons in Ascension

Body level consciousness has a place; it is just not the guiding force for one's spiritual lessons from the perspective of Mother Earth.

Why is this so?

Body level awareness does not know much other than the direction or movement of energy flow; this is not enough information to allow for the learning of spiritual lessons in the life dance of an evolving human.

It is for this reason perhaps that the false gods are really useless as a guiding force as they know only about how to move chi and not necessarily how to understand the lessons that soul is learning: for inflated body level consciousness is not soul.

Who is one going to trust if soul is essentially destructive?

The Tao has made available unto Earth, your solar system, and all sentient ascending species therein new formless souls. Such souls are not dragon shaped; they are formless, and they enter the dance to direct ascension Home. Earth is most grateful for these souls; and one may wish to intend a new formless oversoul, angelic oversoul, and source to guide one's journey from this point forward.

One can see in this that there is another turning of souls occurring upon Earth, as all that has been dragon in shape is now leaving and formless souls are entering the dance within Earth's global field: this is also made available for all in the new consensus of ascension in human, dolphin and whale form.

It is soul that directs the consciousness of form to understand the spiritual lessons one is learning in this lifetime and in one's ascension. Spiritual lessons come in many forms; generally, those ascending to 3,000 are learning to master the first 10 notes of the Language of Light. This translates into lessons that are associated. As the lessons are mastered, one's grid work is rewoven to include the pastel shade associated with the Language of Light Tone. Therefore, Earth can clearly see if an initiate has mastered all 10 notes as all 10 notes appear in one's grid work of the etheric body and auric field.
