The Monad in Love

A new monadic family
Is about to be born
To witness the emergence
Of the love of the love within
Amongst a clan of incarnate humans
Upon Earth Willing to walk their truth
From ascension into mindset development
And realization of self
In deep care of each and the whole
In this life

Love Heals All Wounds

Love heals all wounds. Love is the most potent force upon all of Earth and of the Cosmos too. Love is the notion that triggers the cells to renew into new DNA and RNA threads. Love is the notion that triggers the nerves to mend and the spine to regrow. Love is the force that allows for the motions of the star to be born around your subtle body. Love is the space from which you may derive deep joy and gratification at not only being alive but also being capable of witnessing all that you are realizing in your life. Love is the motion that allows for divine partners of twins or counterparts of fate to find one another and remain together through time. Love is the notion that allows unity to emerge in the community of the monadic soul family. Love is the gift of the Baba in this cycle that desires to cause a rise amongst those realizing something into deeper care of the heart, blossomed through the love of the love within, than possibly fostered in any other cycle.

Love is needed by spirit and soul alike. Love is the motion that allows spirit and soul to repair itself through time. Love is the motion that cares for you and me and others and the nonphysical alike enough to repose in gentleness and honor of all of life. Love is a single word inadequate to interpret all that it means. The nuances of love in the language known as English has all but been lost; but we will attempt to find a few remaining as we write through time ahead.

Love is a force all of its own as an intergalactic interplay that is attempting to heal many regions and creations all at once. There is a pathway to great love opening soon in the Mother Sun dreaming of the planet. As the Mother Sun dream fluxes open in 2026, the love will flourish again in the Aurora of Earth. As this unfolds, the dreams of a potential nuclear war shall be abated off planet. Love is a fostering not only of the pink ray but also of the blue ray. The two rays do not blend but remain succinct within one another. Blue and pink foster health and regrowth and renewal through time when added together into the small transfusion body. Request of the Baba to infuse your transfusion body with the blue and pink ray to foster your health and sustenance. Some prefer to run white to renew. Although white is helpful, pink is more gracious in allowing the body to feel cared for from within. As the love of the love blossoms within, generally adepts go from running the white ray to renew to the pink ray of sustenance.

The blue ray is for sustainable health when added in small amounts to begin with. Later some may discover that blue is useful in cool transfusion and fosters better sustainable health through time. Hot and cool transfusion systems work together to retain the right temperature of all cells to retain health as each octave is transfused through in time.

Transfusion is an art. Transfusion is also an act of love in its original concept of self. Transfusion is to infuse love and defuse non-love. In the greater schemata of all of existence, this is the only real purpose of transfusion. Some creations hold more love and need to infuse something else. For Earth, she is so diminished of care that infusing love is the main purpose of transfusion now and in many cycles long come and gone. Remember to infuse the love and defuse all else; as nothing else really exists when the illusion and delusion you reside within is finally motioned beyond. All there is is love, love, all there is is love . . .
