

SIP. TASTE. TUCK
INTO LIQUID NITROGEN
BOTTLE SERVICE

BOOK NOW

The Moving Sidewalks at Bayou Music Center, 9/28/2013

BY CHRIS GRAY

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 2013 AT 7 A.M.

L-R: The Moving Sidewalks' Billy Gibbons and Tom Moore

Photos by Jim Bricker

Moving Sidewalks Bayou Music Center September 28, 2013

"We're actually remembering this shit," Billy F. Gibbons said after the Moving Sidewalks had played two choppy, fuzz-clouded songs Saturday night at Bayou Music Center. By all accounts, it was his pre-ZZ Top engagement's first public performance on a Houston stage since the LBJ administration, not to mention a glimpse of an alternate timeline any Bayou City music-history buff would find irresistible.

The occasion was the Deacons of Deadwood's 12th annual charity gala, a fundraiser thrown by the large Houston motorcycle club/nonprofit whose annual donations to Houston-area children's charities number in the six figures. According to current Deacons president Steve Lamb, the Sidewalks got involved because "some friends of the band contacted us." He went on to tell me his non-Deacon position is an assets manager for Morgan Stanley, both Jimi Hendrix's and Sharon Stone's sisters were at the gala, and that

advertisement

PEARLAND SUPER WEEKEND

February 4-5, 2017
Super Concert | Trolley Car Shuttles

VisitPearland.com

the Deacons have raised some $1.4 million for some very fortunate local kids in the club's 11-year history. Kudos.

So Saturday, many of the Deacons -- recognizable by their custom white suit jackets, many sleeveless and some with patches bearing names like "Hoss" or "Coonass" or "Roadhouse" -- plus their dressed-to-the-nines dates and about 800 more friends of the band, all gathered to eat (catering by Demaris), drink (top-shelf open bar), and pose on the Harley-Davidson ice sculpture near the restrooms or bid on a guitar autographed by AC/DC's Angus and Malcolm Young (minimum bid: $3,950) in the silent auction. Rocks Off definitely needs to review charity galas more often, but only if they're this bananas.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Legends At The Jefferson Liverpool Legen...

Wed., Feb. 8, 7:00pm

TICKETS

The Expendables

Thu., Feb. 9, 6:30pm

TICKETS

Bricks In the Wall

Fri., Feb. 10, 8:00pm

TICKETS

tobyMac

Sat., Feb. 11, 6:30pm

TICKETS

Nightbird

Sat., Feb. 11, 7:00pm

TICKETS

After a good, long opening set by Houston's Fab 5 that spanned '60s rock from "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" to "In-a-Gadda-Da-Vida," the Sidewalks strolled onstage about 10:50 p.m. to some Hammond B-3 swells courtesy of organist Tom Moore, who looks a little like homespun Houston Chronicle lifestyle columnist Leon Hale. Those licks smelled a lot like "Green Onions," if you catch my drift.

Along with drummer Dan Mitchell, Moore's draft into the U.S. armed forces is the event that sent the Sidewalks' career to the sidelines until Rock Beat

Records' 2012 reissue of the band's lone album Flash, plus assorted singles and demos -- including their, er, reworking of the Beatles' "I Wanna Hold Your Hand" that first got them noticed amid Houston's thriving "teen scene" -- released under the simple-enough name The Complete Collection.

All night long Moore made a fantastic foil for Gibbons, whose master-of-ceremonies banter was dominated by the recurring line, "Are we having a good time now?" The series of "rock faces" Moore made whenever he would hit just the right chord on his B-3 seemed to answer in the affirmative, even as they upstaged the stone-faced, shades-wearing singer every time.

Some 45 years may have gone by, but the the Sidewalks' songs were written by teenage boys, and so sometimes they can be (like teenage boys) a little gawky, a little awkward, and oversaturated with hormones. Saturday, the Who-ish "Flashback," the Nightcaps' rockabilly blast "Wine, Wine, Wine" and Wilson Pickett's eternal "In the Midnight Hour" definitely were. But as men in their sixties, the Sidewalks have also earned the right to not rush a damn thing if they don't want to, life lessons they put to good use at this particular gig. If bassist Don Summers moved more than three inches from where he stood about two feet in front of Mitchell all night, I didn't notice.

Review continues on the next page.

advertisement

ADVERTISING

Besides, they had the good fortune to rub shoulders with the likes of the Thirteenth Floor Elevators back in the day, and the good taste to cover "Reverberation" Saturday, one of the moments when the band's groove dug deepest. "Joe Blues," one of several elastic, luxurious numbers, demonstrated that the fundamentals of Gibbons' guitar technique have been in place since he was about 16 years old. On one level, everything he's done since then has been gravy. But at age 63, that's a thick, thick gravy, dripping with authentic Texas blues.

And here's a criticism you won't see lobbied at Bayou Music Center very often: if anything, this show could have been louder. What we heard Saturday was all coming from maybe eight to 12 Magnatone amps arrayed on either side of Mitchell's kit. It cut off almost any trace of reverb or high end, and coated every song with a viscous covering of audio grease that -- particularly since the band played almost an hour and a half, saying their goodnights right around 12:20 a.m.-- went down smooth indeed with the well-lubricated crowd. They even played "Wild Thing," because how could they not?

advertisement

"And you thought we couldn't be corny," Gibbons quipped.

Would it be nice if the Sidewalks booked a local gig that didn't come at such a hefty price tag? Maybe. Tickets for Saturday's gala started at $225 and reached table/VIP level at $1,500-5,000, which enabled access to the "Big Dog Lounge." (Still, those ice sculptures...) But the gala had to have raised a king's ransom for Child Advocates, Camp Quality USA, Devereux, the Epilepsy Foundation and the Deacons' other worthy beneficiaries.

Meanwhile, onstage the four Sidewalks gave every impression they were having a fine old time, just the four of them whether the crowd was paying any attention or not, and that they wouldn't mind at all doing things like this more often. We already know they're available for private engagements.

Personal Bias: Went into this with an open mind, and left with it having pretty much been blown, more for the overall atmosphere than the Sidewalks' actual music. Though Brother Gibbons et al. did have their moments -- my pick was the glowering cover of Muddy Waters' "Catfish Blues."

The Crowd: Sleeveless white jackets, leather and cleavage everywhere.

Overheard In the Crowd: "Thanks for dressing up, man."

Random Notebook Dump: Wonder how much that open bar set the Deacons back.

advertisement

ROCKS OFF'S GREATEST HITS

The Ask Willie D Archives Top 10 Bars, Clubs & Ice Houses On the Northside Daddy, Why Is Numbers Called Numbers? The Top Five Most Disastrous Musician Interviews Ever The 10 Suckiest Bands of the '00s Top 10 Bars, Clubs & Ice Houses In the Galleria Area

Houston Press Music
 Liked 8.3K likes

Follow @hprocksoff

Chris Gray has been Music Editor for the Houston Press since 2008. He is the proud father of a Beatles-loving toddler named Oliver.

CONTACT: Chris Gray FOLLOW: Houston Press Music Houston Press Music

READ MORE: MUSIC CONCERTS TEXAS MUSIC

RELATED LOCATION

USE CURRENT LOCATION

REVENTION MUSIC CENTER

0 COMMENTS

Get the Music Newsletter

Powered by WIBBITZ

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT

- The 2017 Houston Music Forecast
- White Oak Music Hall Finally Gets Permit for Permanent Outdoor Stage
- The 10 Best Music Venues in Houston
- Watch Austin City Limits Fest for Free With the Houston...

UPCOMING EVENTS

- Super Bowl Gospel Celebration
Fri., Feb. 3, 7:30pm TICKETS
- Bruno Mars
Fri., Feb. 3, 9:00pm TICKETS
- Dancing with the Stars
Mon., Feb. 6, 7:30pm TICKETS
- "The Music Box Does Broadway"
Fri., Feb. 10, 7:30pm TICKETS

POWERED BY goldstar™

RECOMMENDED FOR YOU

You Might Also Like

Try (1) Odd Trick to Force Your Eyes into Perfect 20/20 Vision in 7 Days

Quantum Vision

Can We Get a Better Crow Than Jason Momoa?

Build and Price The 2017 Dodge Challenger

Kelley Blue Book

Cruz and Cornyn Go to Bat For Controversial Cancer Doc

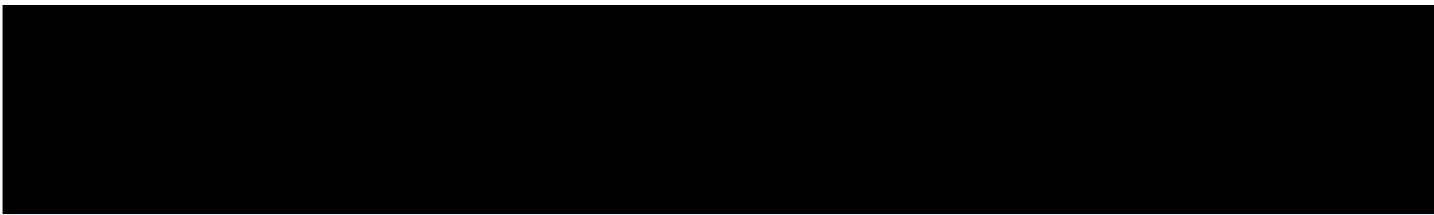

Sponsored by Revcontent

'15 Jeep Grand Cherokee

Sponsored By: cargurus.com

Sponsor Content

2017 ROCK & ROLL HALL OF FAME INDUCTEE
JOURNEY

SPECIAL GUEST
ASIA

smart
financial centre
at Sugar Land

JULY 1
BUY TICKETS

©2017 Houston Press, LP. All rights reserved.

