

BOOMERTOWN

Joe Baiardi keeping the spirit of the '60s alive

By Rick Campbell on June 27, 2013 at 8:04 PM

★Chron

1 Worst Carb After Age 50

If you're over 50 and you eat this carb, you will never lose bell
healthplus50.com

Peter Noone of Herman's Hermits, center, joins The Fab 5 backstage at the Stafford Centre last August. The Fab 5, from left, includes Chuck Essick, Joe Baiardi, Rod Robert, John Lassen and Paul Byron. (Photo courtesy of Joe Baiardi)

(Interview conducted and edited by Rick Campbell)

Poster for the Moving Sidewalks reunion show March 30 in New York City, designed by Joe Baiardi.

Music from the '60s has been the soundtrack of Joe Baiardi's life since practically the beginning. He grew up in New York City, and music was a constant presence in his home. His parents loved pop music of all kinds. In 1969, when he was somewhere around the age of 5, his mother gave him his first Beatles record — Get Back — while he was recuperating from a tonsillectomy. He was hooked.

Nearly 45 years later, he can be found on stage with The Fab 5, playing left-handed bass like one of his heroes, Paul McCartney, while performing music by the Beatles and other British Invasion-era bands.

In his other life, Baiardi, 49, works in a project control group for a Houston engineering company. In the past couple of years, he's also evolved into somewhat of the keeper of the Houston '60s music scene flame.

How long have you been playing Beatles music?

ADVERTISEMENT

Chron

I've been performing Beatles music since 1980, when I had my first tribute band "Rubber Soul" in NYC. We won a few "sound alike" contests at Beatfest in the early '80s. In 1988, I moved from New York to Texas, so I was away from it for about 12 years and at that time and during that time my daughter Andrea was born and I started writing my own music. In 2000, I started performing Beatles/'60s again with different tribute bands across the country (Cast of Beatlemania, Come Together and Beat Club). Then in February 2003, I joined The Fab 5. Today, The Fab 5 performs six to nine times a month, every month, every year.

What's it like to play concerts with legends such as Peter Noone, America and Three Dog Night?

We actually pinch ourselves thinking, "How did we get here?" It's hard to believe that we are performing with some of the musicians we idolized as young kids. They all have been so nice to us and really appreciate the attention to detail we give to the music, gear and clothes.

ADVERTISEMENT

Any conflicts with your day job?

Luckily, no, with the exception of being tired sometimes after a three-gig weekend. My Client Program Director is even a fan, as well as my co-workers. They all think it's cool.

What drives your love for the '60s?

Plain and simple: The music. (Plus we love vintage clothes, guitars and cars.) It was a testimony to the changes that were happening in our world at that time. It was a time of innocence. I think people who listen to '60s music nowadays are trying to plug into something that was special to their parents and they want to follow suit, to find out what it was all about. Some kids listening to '60s music just dig it. It is music that is timeless in a respect. There was a subtle revolution going on, and a lot of the bands pushed the envelope as much as they could. Back then you could be 16, put a band together with your friends, release a local single, get local radio airplay and maybe open up for a national recording act that comes through your town. That could lead to a major label to sign you and you could become stars! Those things do not happen anymore.

How did you evolve into a keeper of the Houston '60s flame?

This started with loving the band Thursday's Children and their song "Try Girl." I had no idea that my friend Ezra Charles was the keyboardist/vocalist/songwriter. I didn't realize he was at one time Charles Helpinstill. So I told him "I didn't know you were in Thursday's Children." And he replied, "What rock have you been living under?" Since I didn't grow up in Houston, I had no clue. I've since also become good friends with Richard Gollwitzer, the band's drummer. So I started my research on all my favorite bands and what these musicians were doing today. In my quest, I got to be friends with members from the Moving Sidewalks, The Glass Kans, the Sixpentz, the Surf Knights, The Coastliners, The Pastels and quite a few others. I also wanted to see the studios where this music was created only to find only that Goldstar (Sugarhill) was the only one still operating as a studio. My favorite recordings came from Andrus Productions (now a machine shop which I was able to visit recently), Doyle Jones Studio (demolished and now a two-story home) and Duke/Peacock Studio (now a church). I could not believe Houston had not done anything to landmark or preserve these historic R&R places of our musical past. I am happy to hear that Allen's Landing is finally being restored (once home to David Adickes' Love Street Light Circus). Houston was THE musical capital from the '40s through the '60s before Austin took over.

What kind of feedback are you getting from local musicians?

They love hearing about the history, people, and places of Houston's '60s music scene. It's opened a lot of eyes and ears to what was really happening here in Houston and where these clubs/studios once stood in their glory days.

You were one of the drivers behind the Houston Psych Garage happening. How did that come together?

This started with the re-mastered CD comp release of the Houston '60s band "The Surf Knights" and Tommy George wanted to have a CD release party at Birraporetti's downtown. He and Dean Cook wanted to "pass the torch" to The Fab 5 who were still playing that type of '60s music. We agreed and Tommy wanted to invite musicians from the '60s Houston scene to perform if they wished, in sort of an open-mike situation.

I had Roy Head's cell number, so I asked Tommy to ring him up to see if he wanted to be involved. Roy said "yes", and would also bring his son Sundance and Archie Bell to sing. This changed everything. It became a rock 'n' roll show with The Fab 5, Little Big Rock (backing Roy and Archie), The Coastliners, Liquid Blue, The Interns and Cadillac Johnson (ZZ Top's first bassist) performing. The musicians didn't care about not getting paid; they just wanted to be part of something special. Many of them also drove in from out of town. Scott Chambers (The Glass Kans) and Tommy George (Surf Knights/Big Sweet) were promoting the show with The Blues Hound on KPFT radio leading up to the event. Some of these folks had not seen each other in over 40 years.

Any plans for a repeat?

If the bands/musicians want to play, and the people will come, and we could cover all costs, I think this could turn into a

★Chron

What was it like to be in New York City at the Moving Sidewalks' first show in more than 40 years?

It was an incredible experience. Dan Mitchell, Tom Moore, Don Summers and Billy Gibbons performed like it was 1968 all over again (without the flash pots!). There was no way you could tell that these four guys were apart these last 44 years musically.

They all actively still played music since disbanding in '69. The show was powerful and moving! My hat's off to Billy for making this happen between his ZZ Top touring schedule. My involvement with Sidewalks started when I created a '60s-style Catacombs poster, which I sent to them just for fun. Dan Mitchell and Billy Gibbons loved it and wanted to use it to promote their first reunion show in NYC on March 30 and had me put one together for their VIP ticket holders.

The Fab 5 is scheduled to open for the Moving Sidewalks in September at the Bayou Music Center. Any thoughts about that?

We are very excited about this show. It's the 2013 Charity Ball for Deacons of Deadwood, which is a limited seated event (deaconsfordeadwood.com). We are honored to be a part of this for a fourth year in a row, previously with Blue Oyster Cult and Foghat.

Moving Sidewalks and friends in New York City for their reunion show on March 30. From left are Tom Moore, Norma Baiardi, Don Summers, Billy Gibbons, Joe Baiardi and Dan Mitchell. (Photo courtesy of Joe Baiardi)

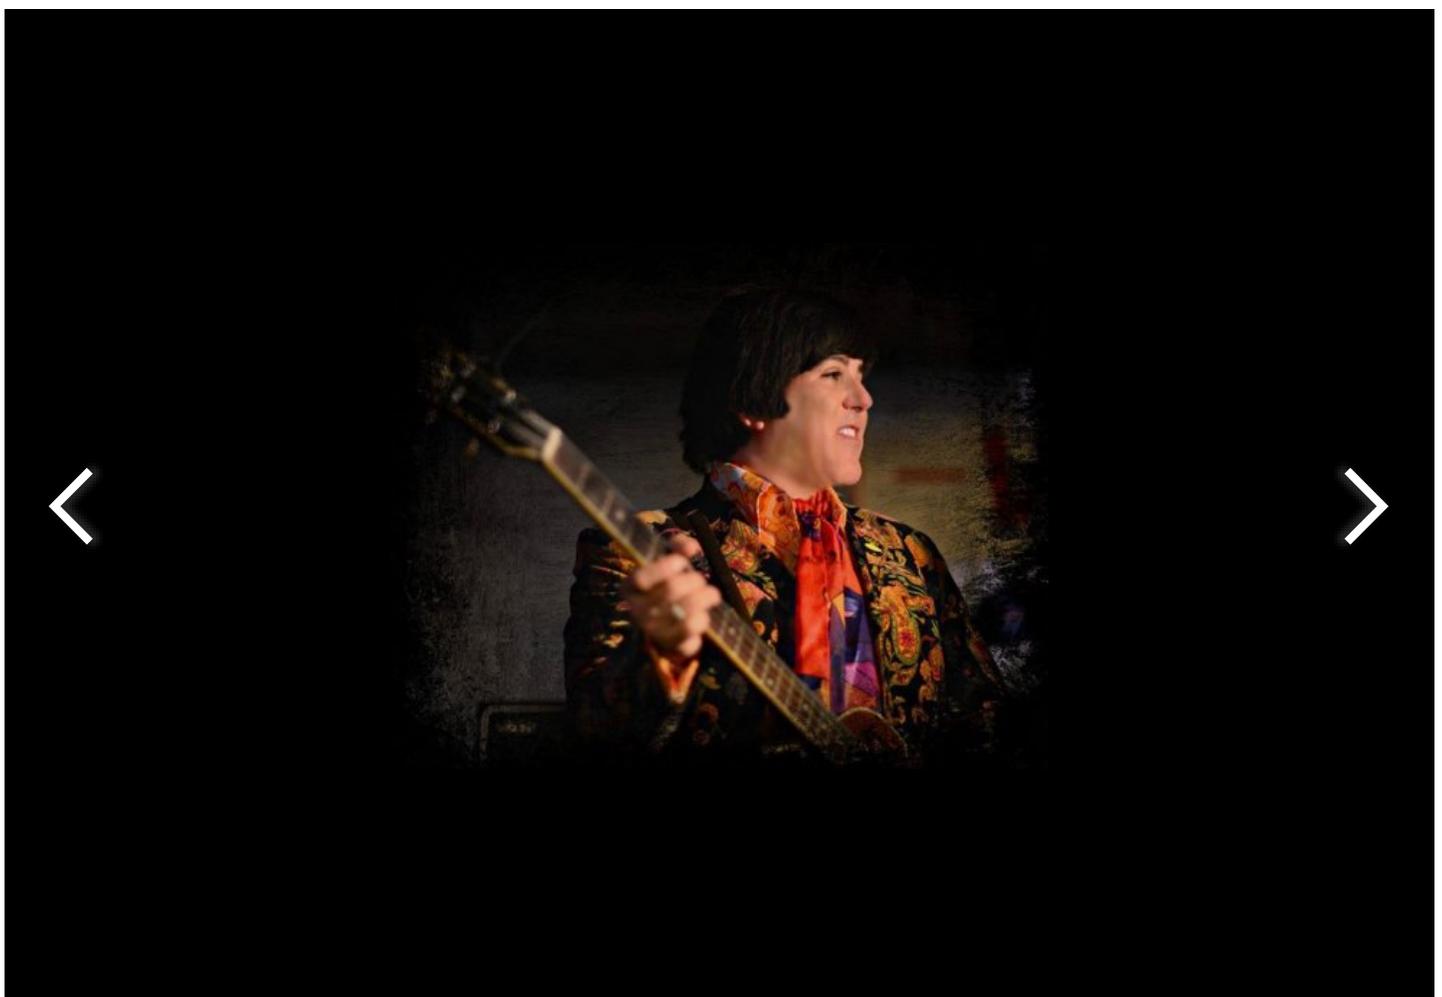

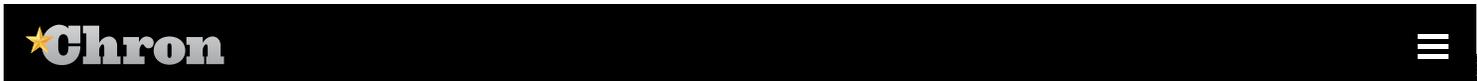

IMAGE 1 OF 19

Joe Baiardi onstage at the Vintage Pub on June 22.

What is Your Brain Health Score? Take the Assessment

Staving Sham - AARP

Federer claims Australian Open title on forehand winner - ESPN Video

Video

Thinking About Installing Solar Panels? Read This First

Eranny Bill Croucher

Enter Your Name, Wait 12 Seconds, Brace Yourself

TruthFinder

Sponsored Content

- The Mattress With Sweaty Boyfriend Approved Cooling Design Purple
- Pronger checks Bieber into the boards - ESPN Video ESPN
- 5 Secrets from the Most Successful Salespeople Salesforce
- 80% Market Collapse in 2017 Banyan Hill Publishing
- How Much Money Are People Getting From Reverse Mortgages? LendingTree
- Peek Inside the First Daughter's New Washington, D.C. Mansion Lonny Magazine
- Man who predicted Trump victory makes next unexpected prediction MoneyWise 411

We Recommend

- Mariah Carey is reportedly firing one of her key team members after New Year's Eve meltdown
- Inmate serving six life sentences for fatal DWI crash dies
- So who is running to succeed Lane Lewis as HCDP Chair?
- This relatively unknown town in Florida has become a playground for the richest of the rich
- An engine literally fell off a US Air Force B-52 bomber while in flight
- Stephen Curry's next contract shows why it will be a long time before we see another NBA superstar jump ship
- The other "faithless elector" speaks up

Recommended by Outbrain

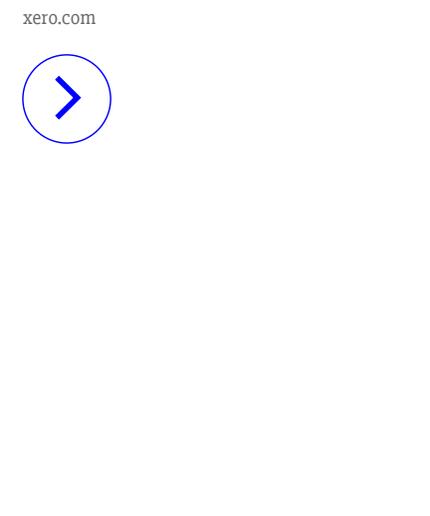

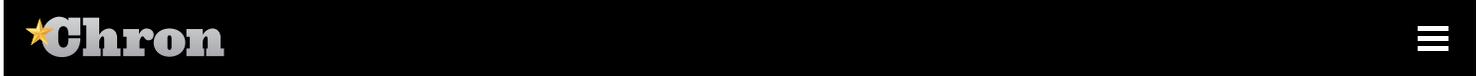

ENJOY GUY'S BURGER JOINT, ONLY ON CARNIVAL. Cruises starting at $269*

BOOK NOW

VIEW COMMENTS

Xero™ Online Accounting

All You Need to Run Your Business No Contracts or

ADVERTISEMENT

Ad closed by Google

Stop seeing this ad

AdChoices

Sponsored Content

Absolutely the Best Sheets You'll Ever Sleep in MorningFinance

Do You Know the Signs of Dementia? 9 Surprising Facts
AARP

What 10 'Dowdy' TV Actresses Look Like in Real Life (PHOTOS)
CafeMom

What Keeps Retail Employees Happy With Their Company?
Culture Amp

Recommended by outbrain

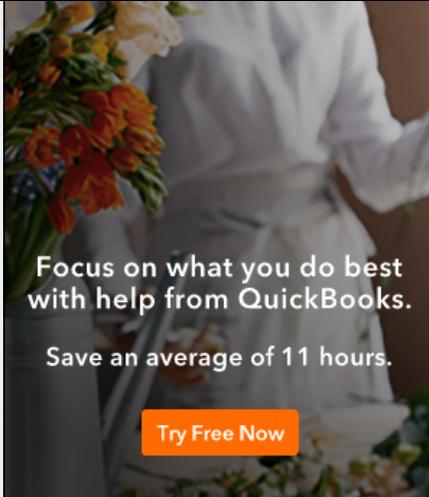

Blog Search

Keyword search across all the entries in this blog.

GO

Chron

Focus on what you do best with help from QuickBooks.

Save an average of 11 hours.

Try Free Now

Today's Deals

Powered by dealnews.

Garmin nuvi 57 5" Dedicated GPS for $51 + free shipping

Sceptre 49" 4K 2160p LED LCD UHD TV for $308 + free shipping

CAP Barbell Doorway Sit Up Bar for $5 + pickup at Walmart

Ozark Trail Portable Camp Kitchen/Sink Table for $54 + free...

Archives

Browse previous blog posts by month and year of entry. You'll see all the posts for that time period.

Select Month

An advertisement for the "Xfinity Challenge". At the top center is a large, stylized "X" logo with a blue and white gradient, followed by the word "CHALLENGE" in a bold, sans-serif font. Below this, there is a pricing section: "Get started with XFINITY Internet" followed by "$29.99 a month/12 months" in a large font, with "with 1-year agreement" underneath. To the right of the pricing is a blue box with white text that says "Limited-Time Offer Ends Tue. Feb. 21st". At the bottom right of the ad is the phone number "1-800-XFINITY". At the very bottom is a blue bar with white text that says "Try us risk free with our 30-day money-back guarantee" and a right-pointing arrow.

A dark gray footer section. On the left is the "Chron" logo. On the right is a "Return to Top" link with an upward arrow. Below the logo are four main navigation categories: "About" (with links to Our Company, Careers, Advertise with Us, Ad Choices, Terms & Conditions, Privacy Policy, Your California Privacy Rights), "Contact" (with links to Customer Service, Newsroom Contacts), "Connect" (with links to Email Newsletter, Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest, Google+, Instagram), and "Subscribe" (with links to the mobile app, HoustonChronicle.com, Houston Chronicle Archives, eEdition Demo, Today's eNewspaper). At the bottom left is the "HEARST" logo and the copyright notice "© Copyright 2017 Hearst Newspapers, LLC".