Children's Village Preschool recently held an Active Shooter Training for all staff. The school currently serves about 100 families with children ages 0-5. Kevin Brown is very knowledgeable and comes with a wealth of experience relevant to this training. He is very professional and organized, and his presentation was very thorough and informative. His training included a good balance of statistical information, how to identify possible active shooter situations, and provided relevant examples of strategies to implement in both workplace and offsite scenarios for possible survival in case of a shooting attack. He does a thorough threat assessment on location and provides recommendations, many of which could be readily implemented.

After the training, the participants left better prepared with knowledge of how to react should a situation arise in the workplace, but also better aware should a situation arise in any public place or where groups of people may gather. We recommend this training for any person or group of people interested in gaining awareness of how to proceed in such situations in any environment and we strongly believe that the information shared can increase the likelihood of survival in an active shooter situation.
