I wish to extend my heartfelt gratitude to the executive committee for their unwavering support throughout my inaugural year as the secretary of the Exhibition Poultry Association of NSW.

The past year has marked a significant chapter in the association's journey, characterised by notable achievements and substantial growth. Our accomplishments have been highlighted by the successful launch of official EPANSW merchandise, the inception of our first calendar, and a remarkable presence at prestigious events such as the Sydney Royal and the Royal Canberra Poultry show.

The support and enthusiasm exhibited by poultry fanciers at large have been truly heartening. I would like to express our sincere appreciation to the RAS poultry committee for their generous cooperation, which allowed us to establish a significant presence in the 2023 SRES Poultry Pavilion. It is our aspiration to cultivate and nurture this relationship, envisioning a continued collaborative journey into the future.

As highlighted in the treasurer's report, the official merchandise and calendar initiatives have been met with resounding acclaim. The feedback received has been truly wonderful, underscoring the alignment of our efforts with the preferences of our valued members and supporters.

A particularly exhilarating announcement came in the form of plans for the 2024 National Poultry Show, to be held in Canberra with the invaluable support of EPANSW. The preparations are well underway, encompassing the finalisation of judges' nominations and the establishment of a dedicated working committee.

Throughout the year, our correspondence has largely revolved around matters of membership, merchandise acquisition, the National Poultry Show, and the nomination of judges for this prestigious event.

I would like to thank the many clubs and individuals who have supported the Exhibition Poultry Association of NSW. With the momentum gained in 2023, I hold the sincere hope that 2024 will prove to be equally exhilarating and prosperous for our association.
