Activity 15

Help Maryam find her prayer mat and design a beautiful one for her by colouring it in

Activity 16

Poster:

Ramadan is the perfect time for activities that teach children about gratitude. Explain why it is important to be thankful for the many blessings given to us every single day and how each one is a precious gift from Allah.

Instructions:

Give a child a blank sheet of A4 paper. Help them create a poster with the heading "Alhamdullilah for..." and each day get the child to write (or draw) 1 thing they are grateful for on the poster. Keep in mind that if the poster becomes full just create another one and staple them together.

At the end of Ramadan, sit down with the child and go through all the blessings they've received. This is a wonderful way to teach children gratitude.

Activity 18:

Ramadan for both children and adults is about self-improvement and self-awareness. This is a wonderful way to communicate with a child and talk to them candidly about the ways you yourself have tried to improve for the better. Then allow them some time to self-reflect and ask questions before undertaking the exercise.

Color this Ramadan design and add your thoughts.

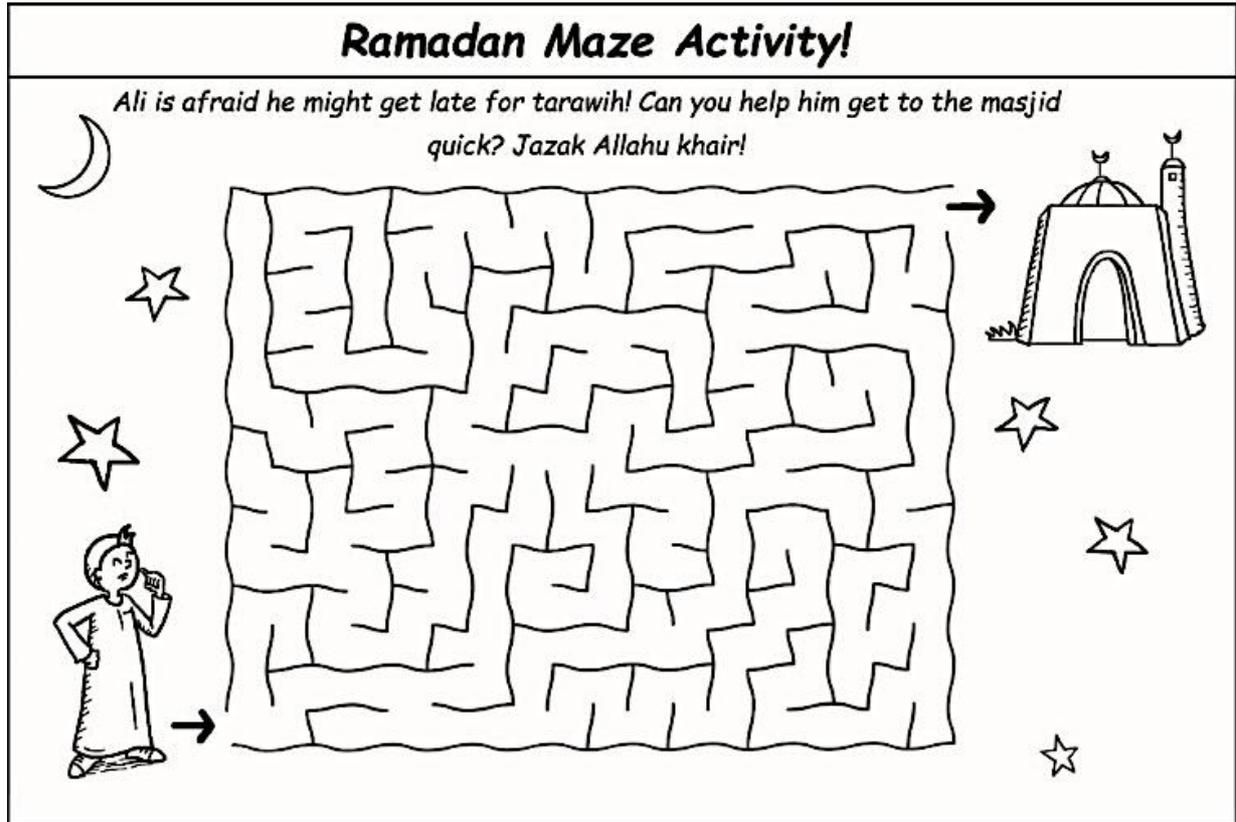

Activity 19: Color and accessorize this beautiful Ramadan design

During Ramadan children love the bright colours and lights. It is important to show them that will Ramadan is often about sacrifice it is also a holiday to be treasured and enjoyed by all. Let their imaginations flow freely and for this next task supply them with colours and glitter to make a truly outstanding design.

Activity 20:

This is a fun way to explain to children the importance of Tarawih Prayers and why prayer must happen on time. Help Ali get to masjid on time.

Activity 21

Connect the dots – what does the word say? Islamic Art has been admired throughout the centuries use this opportunity to teach your child about it. Can they recreate their own version of Islamic Art?
