

Brock Larson

Brock Larson (b.1991) first began drawing at a very early age under the guidance of his father, Jeffrey T. Larson. He started his training in high-school with Charles Bargue copies and cast drawings before moving to Minneapolis to pursue a formal classical education at The Atelier Studio Program of Fine Art, where he studied full-time for five years. In his final year of school, Brock began teaching part-time classes which he continued before moving to his hometown area of Duluth, MN to help his father establish and co-direct Great Lakes Academy of Fine Art. They are currently in the second year of the curriculum and teach regularly.

Recent honors include:

- Two ARC scholarships
- ARC Salon finalist
- Selected as the annual Minnesota State Bar Association's presidential portrait painter.

Brock's work is represented by Collins Gallery in Orleans, MA, as well as Edgewood Orchard Gallery in Door County, WI.
