

That's Good to Know! Important Premarital Questions—BEFORE You Tie the Knot

Congratulations! You met, fell in love and want to tie the knot. It's an exciting time! My name is Annelies Gentile, I'm an Interfaith Minister and honored to share this day with you. Grateful you chose me to be your wedding officiant. Thank you and many blessings!

I know you're excited to share your life together and have dreams to pursue. Before you make your decision official, I invite you to discuss these important topics—together. It will deepen your belief in one another, sort out differences and help your relationship in the long run.

If you've been married in the past, then you may be coming into this commitment with more clarity (or anxiety) than the last marriage. Perhaps you're more mindful of your own shortcomings, have done some personal work to improve your communication and may be looking forward to this time being different. Whether it's your first or last marriage there's just some things that are good to know in advance.

Explore these prompts independently, then share your answers or simply answer them together. Either way—find out more about each other now. Knowing some things in advance will strengthen reasons why you'll choose to stay together when things get hard, and as with life—there will be hard times. Be willing to be vulnerable with one another. Be willing to learn about one another. Be willing to grow, dream and improve.

Best of luck to you on your new journey! If you need additional support, couples coaching or have any other questions, just ask!

→ The first TWO pages are required to complete. Beyond that is a deeply personal inquiry designed mostly for you two. Feel free to share what you'd like me and your friends and family to know about your love story! Enjoy learning together! ☺

Many blessings,
Rev. Annelies Gentile

THINK FIRST

These first questions may be most important. If you don't know why you're getting married or have different views of where you'll be in a few decades, it could cause problems down the road. Ask yourselves: Why are we getting married? (FYI- Your reasons might be different than one another's). Make a list of pros and cons to officially getting married. Be honest.

WHY?	PROS	CONS

Seeing & Thinking... Ask yourselves the following.

- What I love most about my partner is...
- What I see in them that makes me smile most is....
- What bothers me the most about them is.....
- How do others see us as a couple?
- Where might we be blind to one another?

Planning for Life
