1889 INSTITUTE WELCOMES NEW RESEARCH FELLOW

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (November 5, 2018) – The 1889 Institute, an Oklahoma state policy think tank, welcomes attorney Michael Davis as the Institute’s new Research Fellow. This is a new position at the Institute, which expands the research capacity of the organization.

Prior to joining the 1889 Institute, Mike worked with the Nevada Policy Research Center and the Institute for Justice where he researched and assisted in strategy development in state and federal constitutional law litigation against governmental overreach. He is a cum laude graduate of Notre Dame Law School and member of the New Hampshire Bar.

Prior to his legal career, Mike helped create Saturday morning cartoons and worked as a member of the media relations team during the 2006 Torino Olympic Games.

Davis’ primary areas of interest include state constitutional structure, occupational licensing, free speech, and private property rights. The Institute’s principles of limited and responsible government, free enterprise, and civil discourse will inform his research and writing. Litigation is not part of the 1889 Institute’s mission.

“Mike’s wide and varied experiences will, no doubt, help the 1889 Institute formulate policy to make Oklahoma the best that it can be,” said Byron Schlomach, Director of the 1889 Institute.

“We are proud to have Mike join our team and look forward to adding his skill set to enhance the Institute’s impact in recommending policies that benefit all Oklahomans and make Oklahoma more prosperous,” said Senior Fellow, Vance Fried.

“I’m excited to join the 1889 Institute and contribute to the good work it has already accomplished,” said Davis. “I look forward to making Oklahoma my new home and helping to shape policies that benefit everyone in current and future generations,” he said.
