

Secular Logic:

A Path to Common Ground

Thirty years ago, I heard the Dalai Lama say along the lines of: "We as a species will come to a greater peace and integrity when we together settle upon a secular logic."

That idea stayed with me like a gentle breeze in the mind. Over decades of curiosity and reflection, I came to see how secular logic and what I call the Lore of Law can guide our human family back toward balance.

By secular, I mean that which pertains to all of us-every member of our seven-billion-strong human family. We are cells of a single living organism: humanity, nested within the greater biosphere of our Exotic, Erotic Living Earth.

The Call for Secular logic asks us to step beyond:

- Religious dogma and infallible doctrines
- Contrived political theatre
- The deception and fraud of governments
- The perfidy of the justice industry
- Usury-driven debt slavery management of the blood of our collective social body (money)
- Indoctrination and dumbing down in schooling
- The unaccountable greed of corporatocracy
- Atheistic materialism and divisive ideology
- Spiritual Vacuity of mainstream academia, science and media

Beyond these veils lies what is self-evident: our shared reality, our social body, and our collective duty to steward it wisely.

The Lore of Law, Lore is the story behind the law: the archetypal geometry and living wisdom beneath its surface. It speaks to balance-the harmony between the liberty of our free will and the consent of others.

Public servants hold sacred duty as stewards of the organs of our collective social body: Church, State, Justice, and Commerce. When their stewardship is just, society thrives. When it is unjust, trust collapses, and breaches of our social contract appear.

The Breach of Trust in recent years has revealed a dominance of unjust stewardship in the organs of our social body.

History bears witness: hidden knowledge, contrived wars, crusades, witch burnings, genocides, and usury have stained our collective trust.

When public servants betray their sacred trust, it is a breach of our social contract - a wound in the fabric of our collective integrity.

The Remedy: The Living Oath, The honourable remedy is specific performance: to enforce the social contract through transparency and accountability.

The Living Oath Initiative is this remedy. It invites every public servant-from clerks to sovereigns-from nurse to high priest, to record and present their solemn soul oath: a visible, spoken, now-time commitment to serve justly and transparently.

It is as simple as recording a short video, spoken freely and sincerely, and sharing it openly for all to see. It matter not where you upload simply get a QR code for linking.

Soul, Sovereignty, and Justice

Where as in fact from the very simple and obvious secular logic the Creator is Creation creating itself in this now time moment and no matter who you are, human or other, you can not not be a living aware aspect of the wholly see of our wholly living reality.

You can not not have a soul, even quantum physics suggest nothing can appear in our wholly reality with out an informed field intelligence which informs the atoms as to the appearance ones form will appear with.

A rock has a soul and is conscious as a rock, we all who have a body and mind have the capacity to be conscious of having and being involved with the evolve of our living soul.

It is also obvious from the wisdom traditions that it is in fact our living awareness which is the actual living immortal aspect of we all. Trans humanism, Hadron Colliders, Space Race etc is the separated-ego mentality desperately seeking that which it does not realise it already possesses.

Awareness is at the mercy of the justice of creation and in our collectivity we have created a world as a mirror to capture the mechanics and dynamics of that which is unseen and untouchable of the mystery of life and creation and for we all to have opportunity to know and understand the workings of our soul and its journey through eternity. The Justice of Creation is blind to the reasons of why, it looks only to the deeds.

We may speculate that the growing surveillance state with it's complete evaporation of privacy is a gentle mirror reminder that it is the fabric of our living soul which captures our every thought act and deed as our signed confession upon arrival to the portal of death.

Our signed confession will present who we truly are as a result of our soul craft, all we have ever done in accord with our gift of freewill, the agendas we have served in accord with our gift of rationale, and in accord with our gift of imagination the honour of our commerce of will with all or any other living soul, and most importantly that which is our attitude toward and relationship with Innocence in its every expression.

Our soul craft is the template for our awareness's next arrival to innocence.

The nature of the creator and creation is pure innocence, and is such simply because it humbly allows we all to make full usury of the gift of freewill it has given we all.

In a sense our innocence is our inner sense.

The entire commercial economy of the world is mirror to that which each and every living soul is here to learn, the honourable commerce of will between living souls.

As Pope Leo recently affirmed: "Sovereignty is not a luxury, it is a right. It is a divine dignity rooted in creation itself."

All law exists to honour the balance between free will and consent, ensuring harmony between living souls.

Justice is blind but precise: it reflects our deeds and our attitude toward innocence.

A Call to Just Stewardship

Public servants, by choice, hold sacred duty. The Living Oath is a return to that honour: to speak openly, transparently, and soulfully, affirming allegiance to justice, integrity, and the living social body we share.

We can no longer trust titles or offices alone. We must see, hear, and feel the integrity of those who serve. This is the secular logic of our time: to anchor governance in living accountability and to reconnect society with its rightful stewards.

"For the deed of the soul is with the life by the deeds.

For the agenda you serve is with the justice you earn by the usury of free will."
