Querido Tequila and Summit Distributing Company Launch into Las Vegas Markets with Newly Forged Partnership

Las Vegas, Nevada - August 16, 2021 - Having announced their newfound partnership with Summit Distributing Company, Querido Tequila is on track to bring a new wave of energy, authenticity, and excitement to the Entertainment Capital of the World.

Between their commitment to cultural tradition and forward-leaning outlook, the Querido Tequila family views their partnership as the first step on their brand's journey.

When asked to comment, Emilio and Santiago Romo, the brother duo behind Querido Tequila, stated, "we are incredibly excited to partner with Summit, especially considering our shared values of sustainability and conservation."

Committed to taking a customer-centric approach and disrupting the status quo, Summit Distributing Company's track record and future vision closely align with the Querido brand. Between Querido's time-tested tequila making legacy and Summit's partnerships throughout Las Vegas Valley and the Northern Nevada region, the partners are in the premier position to thrive in a competitive market.

Querido Tequila is known for its eco-friendly practices, partnership with the non-profit One Tree Planted, and sustainably harvested agave. Through their new partnership, they plan to uphold these practices while looking for new ways to support the environment.

They are particularly excited to join efforts with Summit's star-studded leadership team, including CEO Kevin McCracken, a routine supporter of innovative, national emerging brands. Although the Querido Tequila family has bold plans still to come, their future as both a brand and lifestyle is already looking bright.
