A Note from Mr Gay United States 2020 Jackson B Nite

Welcome and thank you for joining us as we crown the 17th Mr. Gay United States.

This year we are bringing together gentleman from all over the country that are proudly representing their state and hoping to be the next symbol of excellence for the Gay United States Pageantry System. I could not be prouder and more honored to have each and every one of those guys battling it out on the stage this week. Though they come from different areas and different backgrounds they all share a passion for the art of drag, for their community, and for our system. I am glad to welcome them all to the Gay United States brotherhood and can't wait to crown the week's victor.

Being crowned Mr. Gay United States last year was something that I had worked towards and dreamed of for eight years. I tried three times for the title, but luckily, the third time was the charm. When they called my name, I stood there in awe; shocked, overwhelmed, excited, and scared. I spent so much time over the years planning how to win that I never took the time to plan how to reign. Thankfully, the Gay United States brotherhood is strong, and I knew I had a string of formers ready and willing to offer support and advice.

To my successor I want to impart some things I learned through the course of my reign in hopes that it will make your reign that much better. First, as soon as the sash crosses your shoulders, it's no longer about you. Being a national title holder isn't about your own popularity and glory, it's about building a system stronger than you found it. You are a caretaker and a guide. At the end of your reign, when you've held your prelims, you've inspired the contestants, and you've represented your system, then it's about you again. Your stepdown is your celebration, your victory party, because only then is your job done.

Second, rely on your court and formers. They know what you're going through and can offer advice, pep talks, or harsh wake up calls when necessary. They are there to help, let them. I was so nervous my first prelim. I was worried I was going to do something wrong and embarrass myself and the system. But there were multiple formers that showed up to support me. They believed in me, and it helped me believe in myself. They are a great resource, use them. Your queen will be your travel buddy and partner in crime. I hope that you are as blessed as I was and get to reign with an amazing, talented, and hardworking queen by your side.

Finally, HAVE FUN! Being a national title holder can be stressful and it's a lot of work, but it can also be great fun. Take the time to enjoy your accomplishments, to make friends, and to laugh. Don't let the work of it consume you to the point you forget why you wanted to represent the system in the first place.

I could not be happier or more blessed than I have been this last year. Reigning as Mr. Gay United States and representing the Gay United States Pageantry System has truly been an honor and a privilege. I cannot wait to see what the future brings. But now it is my time to step back, join the formers, and let the next generation take the reins. This isn't goodbye, just farewell. You can't get rid of me that easily!
