Liveable and loveable

Liveable places

They have the infrastructure, housing, health, transport, education and economic opportunities and other material necessities.

Loveable places

They give us deeper sense of connection to, pride in and agency over. They arouse a desire to make them better. "I never want to leave".

Australians are increasingly subscribing to the mottos of “work where you want to live” and “live where you love”.

When you love your town ...

“Ongerup locals buy pub, service station, supermarket and cafe to keep town alive.”

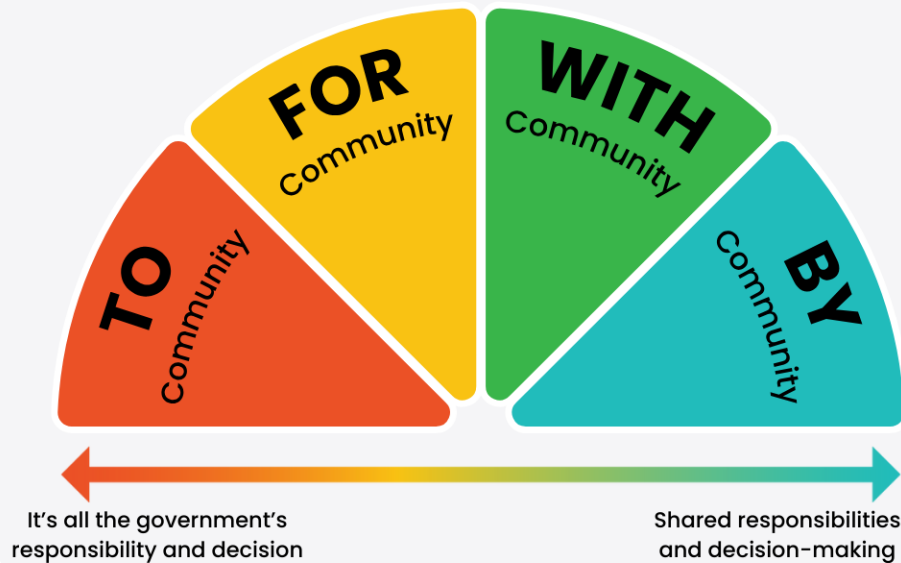

You have a deeper level
of connection to,
belonging in and
feelings of agency
when you actively contribute to your place.

Building a movement of positive doers

Governments can act by doing things ...

This framework is based on the Helper's Crossroads developed by Cormac Russell. For more, go to - <https://amicitia.org/2021/07/16/the-helpers-crossroads/>

To encourage governments to work

- 1. WITH and enable action BY communities, if they would like to.

To encourage people to behave as

- 2. active citizens, rather than passive consumers, if they would like to.
