I don't agree with your plans.

Your attempt at denigrating and demoralizing my reputation have been noted.

You have been notified of our vacation plans, again if you have an order that gives you the ability to interfere attach it. Your agreement is not required.

As far as covid, stop virtue signalling.. you've had it, your boyfriend has had it the week before,, on top of that I will remind you 'again' it went through our house back in March. Which is why nither we nor Rebecca got sick after you exposed our household for a 2nd time so Rebecca is at no risk. If anything you put our friends and family at risk by only pretending to 'follow' the rules.

As far as her schooling issues, that is solely on you and your inability or unwillingness to recognize what is happening and help manage it. Rebecca thrives when with us, we provide a loving and supportive environment, your constant implications that we do anything but that, are baseless and I won't even bother to entertain them anymore.

In accordance with existing orders you HAVE been notified of our vacation plans. Good day to you.

I am not in agreement with this. You do not have permission to take Rebecca out of the RI/CT area until such time as there is an order in place.

There are quarantine rules in place for a reason and I will not allow you to overrule our time together with limitations on our activities- including her return to school in-person the following Monday.

You and I both know how beneficial is it for her to be in person learning and you are making it difficult for me to follow through on that for her by making this decision without my consent.

Subject: February Break

As Rebecca is with me the first half of February break we will be flying to Texas and staying at our house here.

We are still shopping for tickets but will ensure she is back in time for Wednesday the 17th at 7 pm for exchange per court orders. Once tickets are purchased we will provide you with the information on flights.

Thanks
