Western Music & Songwriters Series

The Western Music & Songwriters Series (WMSS) is an annual event held every January in Grantsville, Utah, at The Peak Sports & Entertainment Complex. Founded by WMSS Productions LLC in 2014, this premier music series celebrates Western music, cowboy culture, and original songwriting, featuring award-winning artists from across the country.

Each year, WMSS Productions LLC curates an intimate, storytelling-style concert experience, where musicians share the inspiration behind their songs, creating a unique connection between artists and the audience. The event has become a must-attend for Western music fans and has helped preserve and promote the rich traditions of the genre.

In addition to the music, the Western Music & Songwriters Series hosts the Best of the West Chili Cook-Off, making the event a full experience of Western Heritage, great food, and top-tier entertainment. Artists and attendees alike appreciate the welcoming atmosphere, quality performances, and community spirit that define this beloved tradition.

With growing success each year, the Western Music & Songwriters Series continues to expand its reach, drawing in fans from beyond Tooele County and solidifying its place as a key event in the Western music scene.

One of the most incredible things about great music is that it has the ability to take the listener to a place they'd rather be. A compelling song can carry someone back in time to a treasured memory, or transport a person to a spectacular western prairie they've only visited in their dreams. Ned LeDoux's music has that kind of power. As a songwriter, he has a knack for bringing people, places and emotions vibrantly to life with his insightful lyrics, and warm, strong voice that makes him sound like a beloved friend you always want to hang out with. Those gifts are fully on display on LeDoux's new album Buckskin.

"I'm writing my own story and if people take a liking to it, that's wonderful," says LeDoux. "As long as I'm writing from the heart, and writing about what I know, I can definitely listen back to it and be proud."

On his third full-length album, LeDoux again delivers songs that transcend mere entertainment to celebrate a life that many aspire to, but few actually live. Like his father, LeDoux's music is as expansive as the western sky he was raised under and celebrates the ranch lifestyle that is such an integral part of his heritage. There's an authenticity to his songs that brings our nation's beloved western culture to life, even for listener's who've never ventured onto the Great Plains.

"I'm proud to carry on the tradition and a lot of songs that I write are going to relate with songs that my dad wrote and recorded because I lived the same life," the young singer/songwriter says. "I was born and raised on a ranch, which my family still owns outside of Kaycee, Wyoming. That was my life and it's reflected in the songs I write. I just think back to those days working on a ranch and hanging out with my granddad, who taught me how to drive a tractor, work cows and everything that is associated with ranching, but music has always been my dream."

Horses and music just kinda go together; feel, timing, and a whole lot of balance. Trinity works with her husband at The Thacher School in Ojai, CA. She is the Director of The Horse Program that was founded 130 years ago with the belief that the outside of a horse is good for the inside of a kid. This statement still rings true today and holds a critical place in time, now more than ever. Trinity and her husband have spent the majority of their married life working on cattle ranches across the west while raising four kids. California is not Montana, but the simple values of a life worth living are still the same. While they are not pushing cows at the moment, the opportunity to work with the youth of the future and good horses, is the most meaningful work they can do, and they love it.

In some ways, she is still doing what she set out to do in 2011 with her music, to help perpetuate and promote the western lifestyle. With the horse as her conduit to the music in her soul, she continues to write and share what is in her ranch wife's heart.

She was named one of True West's favorite western artist for 2012. She has received nominations for the Crescendo Award with the Western Music Association for 2012 and 2013. Female western singer and western album of the year with the Academy of Western Artists in 2012. She received an award with the Western Music Association for song of the year for 2014 for her song "Cowboy Hat". Trinity's Second release "Old Poly Rope" has also received many great reviews and nominations and awards for her songs, "Old Poly Rope", "Cricket Roll", and "Cowboy Hat"..
