

The Capivara Brazilian Jazz Quartet is a distinguished ensemble formed by talented Brazilian musicians: Giulia Coba (São Paulo), Fernando Lima (São Paulo), Geovane Santos (Minas Gerais), and Eduardo Tozzatto (Rio de Janeiro). Each member brings a unique set of skills and influences to the group, creating a rich and dynamic musical experience.

- Giulia Coba: Known for her emotive vocals and fusion of MPB, jazz, and Latin music, Coba's voice adds a distinct Brazilian flavor to the quartet's sound. Her ability to connect with audiences through her music enhances the group's overall appeal.
- Fernando Lima: As a versatile drummer, Lima infuses the quartet's performances with vibrant Brazilian rhythms and jazz influences. His expertise helps to create a rhythmic foundation that is both innovative and deeply rooted in Brazilian musical traditions.
- Geovane Santos: A multi-talented artist, Santos contributes as a guitarist, vocalist, and composer. His recognition as a leading Brazilian jazz guitarist and his scholarly work on transculturation and cultural narratives add depth to the quartet's music. His broad artistic and academic background brings a unique perspective to the group.
- Eduardo Tozzatto: With his classical and contemporary piano expertise, Tozzatto adds a sophisticated layer to the quartet's arrangements. His contributions as a performer and educator enrich the group's musical complexity and versatility.

Together, the Capivara Brazilian Jazz Quartet blends their diverse talents and backgrounds to explore and expand the boundaries of Brazilian jazz. Their performances likely feature a fusion of traditional Brazilian rhythms, jazz improvisation, and contemporary influences, reflecting the rich musical heritage of their homeland while engaging with New Orleans' vibrant music scene.
