Posted by Doggedly Adopter on 5/14/21

If you love dogs, please read & share.

I'm writing this post in the hopes that we can help innocent dogs end up in loving forever homes instead of being shuffled around between ill-suited homes or living 23 hours a day in a crate due to a narcissistic woman's ego. Barbara Zuluaga with Doggedly Dog Rescue Society in Houston TX needs to be shut down.

We adopted Steel (who we re-named Steve) from Doggedly in August of 2020. We were not told that he had resource-guarding issues, even though I'm now aware that this was documented 4 months prior to our adoption. We welcomed Steve into our home & worked with him, & he did settle in eventually, but not without sending our boy Buster to the emergency vet after we had to choke Steve to get him off of Buster's neck. Steve just saw red when Buster went to lick his food bowl. He immediately acted remorseful & licked at Buster's wounds, & we are now aware of all of his triggers, so we're confident this won't happen again...

but I'm now aware that others in the rescue tried to tell Barbara that Steve needed to be in a single-dog household. Barb ignored this information from people who had spent months with him, insisting she knew him best, even though she spent [at most] a week with him in Texas.

Steve was found in the street with metal fragments embedded in his skull, after he was adopted out from a Petco event. He was shuffled around to a few different homes, one in which he was beat up by another dog who lived there, & the owner kept Steve crated immediately next to the dog that would attack him. Imagine the stress & anxiety he was going through every day! All of this could've been avoided if Barbara would've had an ounce of sense & homed Steve appropriately.

We let Barbara know we needed to have Steve re-homed on March 9th, & for months she made excuse after excuse as to why she couldn't get Steve into a single-dog foster home. We were told that Ashley, Steve's foster mom that we had kept in touch with, was no longer with the rescue, but they were on good terms. Barbara REFUSED to let us help in the process, even after we told her we have great relationships with rescues up here & could certainly help. In late April, Barb had her assistant Kat contact us, who after a few more weeks, called & made accusations that Steve's behavior was our fault, & that they were going to put Steve on a truck back to TX.

This broke our hearts, b/c we knew a 2-5 day drive on a truck crated next to many other dogs would be torture for Steve, & would likely set his temperament back to where he was before we even got him. We decided then & there that we were not letting Steve go back to TX, & we would find a forever home for Steve ourselves.

On May 12th, Barbara contacted us threatening legal action to take Steve back, since she saw Steve's posting on PetFinder. Apparently Barb had been calling & leaving aggressive messages with other rescues in the greater Seattle area about "her dog." Hope & I had been watching Steve get better & better with Buster (they're starting to cuddle at times, & Steve even exposes his belly toward Buster, which is huge), & we decided then & there that we'll just keep Steve. This shit was way too weird, & we were NOT letting Steve go back to this fucked up rescue.

But we had no idea how fucked up Doggedly Dog Rescue actually was.

Over the last 24 hours, I've become aware of multiple stories that sound exactly the same. Barbara Zuluaga has manipulated many good people into helping her lie about these dogs, placing them into ill-suited homes, apparently taking some kind of sick pride in "proving" that the dogs can be rehabilitated by her, without actually doing any real work to rehabilitate them.

I know of one case of a foster mom being sent to the emergency room by a dog that Barbara just had to save. She showed absolutely no remorse, & even managed to get that dog back before he was euthanized. I worry that this dog will harm other dogs or people when Barb inevitably re-homes him without being honest about his past.

Once a dog needs to be returned to Doggedly due to Barbara mis-representing the dogs' needs, she turns around & blames everything on that adopter. I've heard from multiple adopters & potential adopters how she's talked shit about other people I've spoken to, completely lying about situations.

Apparently Barbara once asked an adopter to put 2 dogs into an XXL crate (instead of 2 smaller crates), & when the adopter raised concerns about the dogs being aggressive, asked for a video proving this. Barbara then used this video as "evidence" that the adopters were the reason that the dogs were not in the right home.

Barbara hordes dozens of dogs in crates for 20+ hours a day in her back room in Houston. This isn't illegal, but it certainly isn't humane. There even seems to be some evidence that the dogs she has adopted out have killed other dogs, & she has still re-homed them, without making that information known. She also raises thousands of dollars off of sad stories like Steve's, & doesn't always spend that money on the dogs. Where does it all go?

Barbara Zuluaga should not be allowed within 10 feet of an animal for the rest of her life, let along running a dog rescue. Please share this information as wide as you can, especially if you know people in the dog rescue world, or in the Houston/Seattle area.

If you are currently working with Doggedly as a foster, I would stop responding to Barbara & start working with a more reputable organization like Fairy Dogmother Rescue & Rehab. If you would like some assistance, please contact me directly, & we'll do whatever we can to make sure Barbara can't harm another dog.

Doggedly Dog Rescue Society needs to be shut down.

Facebook Post

Jonathan Decker is with Ashley Alden and 3 others.

May 14 ⋅ 😚

If you love dogs, please read & share.

I'm writing this post in the hopes that we can help innocent dogs end up in loving forever homes instead of being shuffled around between ill-suited homes or living 23 hours a day in a crate due to a narcissistic woman's ego. Barbara Zuluaga with Doggedly Dog Rescue Society in Houston TX needs to be shut down.

We adopted Steel (who we re-named Steve) from Doggedly in August of 2020. We were not told that he had resource-guarding issues, even though I'm now aware that this was documented 4 months prior to our adoption. We welcomed Steve into our home & worked with him, & he did settle in eventually, but not without sending our boy Buster to the emergency vet after we had to choke Steve to get him off of Buster's neck. Steve just saw red when Buster went to lick his food bowl. He immediately acted remorseful & licked at Buster's wounds, & we are now aware of all of his triggers, so we're confident this won't happen again...

but I'm now aware that others in the rescue tried to tell Barbara that Steve needed to be in a singledog household. Barb ignored this information from dog household. Barb ignored this information from people who had spent months with him, insisting she knew him best, even though she spent [at most] a week with him in Texas.

Steve was found in the street with metal fragments embedded in his skull, after he was adopted out from a Petco event. He was shuffled around to a few different homes, one in which he was beat up by another dog who lived there, & the owner kept Steve crated immediately next to the dog that would attack him. Imagine the stress & anxiety he was going through every day! All of this could've been avoided if Barbara would've had an ounce of sense & homed Steve appropriately.

We let Barbara know we needed to have Steve rehomed on March 9th, & for months she made excuse after excuse as to why she couldn't get Steve into a single-dog foster home. We were told that Ashley, Steve's foster mom that we had kept in touch with, was no longer with the rescue, but they were on good terms. Barbara REFUSED to let us help in the process, even after we told her we have great relationships with rescues up here & could certainly help. In late April, Barb had her assistant Kat contact us, who after a few more weeks, called & made accusations that Steve's behavior was our fault, & that they were going to put Steve on a truck back to TX.

This broke our hearts, b/c we knew a 2-5 day drive on a truck crated next to many other dogs would be torture for Steve, & would likely set his temperament back to where he was before we even got him. We decided then & there that we were not letting Steve go back to TX, & we would find a forever home for Steve ourselves.

On May 12th, Barbara contacted us threatening legal action to take Steve back, since she saw Steve's posting on PetFinder. Apparently Barb had been calling & leaving aggressive messages with other rescues in the greater Seattle area about "her dog." Hope & I had been watching Steve get better & better with Buster (they're starting to cuddle at times, & Steve even exposes his belly toward Buster, which is huge), & we decided then & there that we'll just keep Steve. This shit was way too weird, & we were NOT letting Steve go back to this fucked up rescue.

But we had no idea how fucked up Doggedly Dog Rescue actually was.

Over the last 24 hours, I've become aware of multiple stories that sound exactly the same. Barbara Zuluaga has manipulated many good people into helping her lie about these dogs, placing them into ill-suited homes, apparently taking some kind of sick pride in "proving" that the dogs can be rehabilitated by her without actually dogs can be rehabilitated by her, without actually doing any real work to rehabilitate them.

I know of one case of a foster mom being sent to the emergency room by a dog that Barbara just had to save. She showed absolutely no remorse, & even managed to get that dog back before he was euthanized. I worry that this dog will harm other dogs or people when Barb inevitably re-homes him without being honest about his past.

Once a dog needs to be returned to Doggedly due to Barbara mis-representing the dogs' needs, she turns around & blames everything on that adopter. I've heard from multiple adopters & potential adopters how she's talked shit about other people I've spoken to, completely lying about situations.

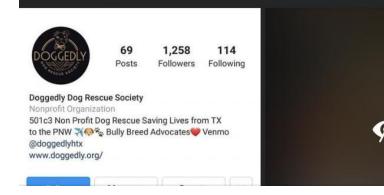

Apparently Barbara once asked an adopter to put 2 dogs into an XXL crate (instead of 2 smaller crates), & when the adopter raised concerns about the dogs being aggressive, asked for a video proving this. Barbara then used this video as "evidence" that the adopters were the reason that the dogs were not in the right home.

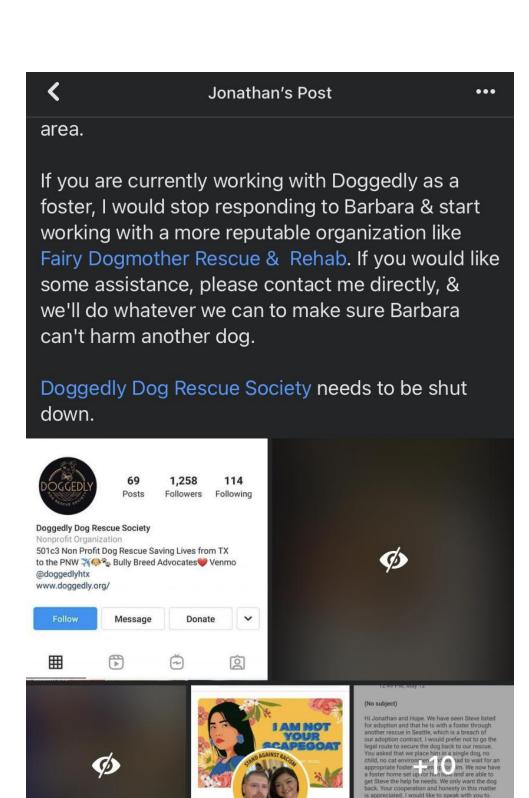

Barbara hordes dozens of dogs in crates for 20+ hours a day in her back room in Houston. This isn't illegal, but it certainly isn't humane. There even seems to be some evidence that the dogs she has adopted out have killed other dogs, & she has still adopted out have killed other dogs, & she has still re-homed them, without making that information known. She also raises thousands of dollars off of sad stories like Steve's, & doesn't always spend that money on the dogs. Where does it all go?

Barbara Zuluaga should not be allowed within 10 feet of an animal for the rest of her life, let along running a dog rescue. Please share this information as wide as you can, especially if you know people in the dog rescue world, or in the Houston/Seattle area.

If you are currently working with Doggedly as a foster, I would stop responding to Barbara & start working with a more reputable organization like Fairy Dogmother Rescue & Rehab. If you would like some assistance, please contact me directly, & we'll do whatever we can to make sure Barbara can't harm another dog.

Doggedly Dog Rescue Society needs to be shut down.

Barbara Zuluaga

Q Search

Barbara Zuluaga

•••

· · · See Barbara's About Info

Friends

Posts

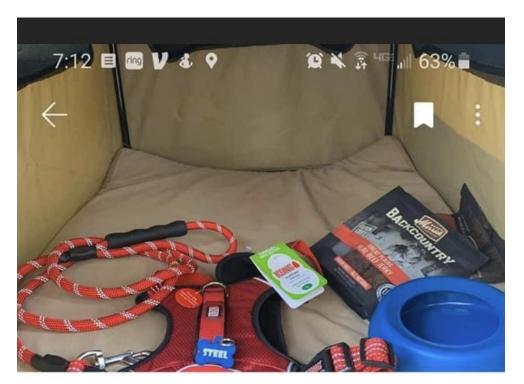

Sarbara (Houston Dog Rescu... : 12:49 PM, May 12

(No subject)

Hi Jonathan and Hope. We have seen Steve listed for adoption and that he is with a foster through another rescue in Seattle, which is a breach of our adoption contract. I would prefer not to go the legal route to secure the dog back to our rescue. You asked that we place him in a single dog, no child, no cat environment and we had to wait for an appropriate foster to open up for him. We now have a foster home set up for him now and are able to get Steve the help he needs. We only want the dog back. Your cooperation and honesty in this matter is appreciated. I would like to speak with you to discuss.

Burned badly by Texas-based rescue

Dealing with A Chance to Bloom (changed name to Doggedly Dog Rescue) showed us the dark side of animal rescues. We had adopted two bonded boys, we specified to Barbara that we lived in a condo and we needed dogs who were dog friendly to both large and small breeds. Furthermore, I had a family member who owned 4 French bulldogs.

When we received the dogs, they were not vetted at all like we had expected - one of the boys had to be taken to the vet because he had demodex which was not disclosed to us. We also paid for both their teeth's to be cleaned because they were in awful shape.

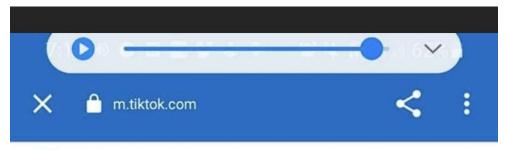

During their decompression period, we noticed that they were reactive to other dogs but we had just thought that it would pass because they were stressed out from transport and being in a new environment. Finally, almost 2 months later, we noticed that they were still aggressive towards other dogs - we reached out to Barbara again and she sidestepped our concerns and ensured us that is using TikTok. Join us now!

Two food piggies ...

Open App

My name is Steel!

Ask About Me

I'm Being Cared for by Doggedly Dog Rescue Society

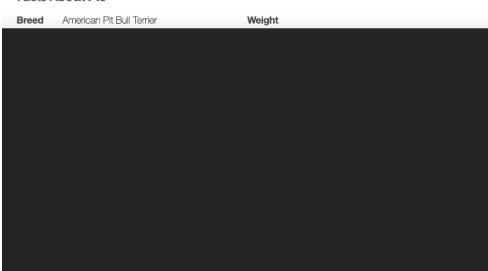

Adoption Process

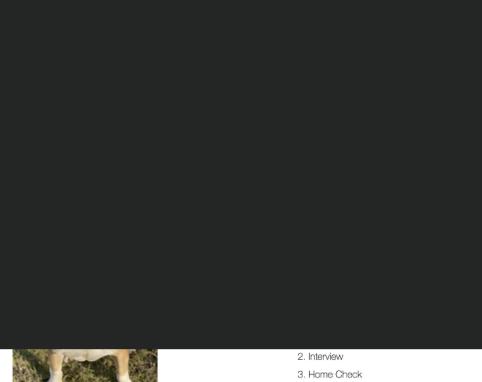

- 1. Submit Application
- 2. Interview
- 3. Home Check
- ∨ View All

Adoption Application

https://www.doggedly.org/

Facts About Me

∨ View All

Adoption Application https://www.doggedly.org/

Facts About Me

Breed American Pit Bull Terrier Weight

Color Tan/Yellow/Fawn - with White Sex Male

Age Pet ID ps_43691436

Size (when grown) Med. 26-60 lbs (12-27 kg)

My Info

✓ Neutered ✓ Shots Up to I

✓ Shots Up to Date
✓ Purebred

✓ Good with Cats

✓ Good with Dogs

Good with Kids