L: Come, all who feel stuck outside the gate, tempted to believe that nothing will ever change.

C: We open our hands and our hearts to the power of resurrection, expecting God to move in our midst.

Offertory Prayer (Read in Unison)

Lord, we know that our financial gifts alone can't heal a broken heart or fix a broken world, but we bring what we have as an act of love and trust. Take these resources and use them to meet real, tangible needs. More than that, use our lives to reach out to those who feel forgotten, isolated, or left behind. Let our giving be a true reflection of Your grace, helping others find hope and stand on firm ground once again. Amen.

Postlude Marni Wiggins

We exist to reflect the love of Jesus so that others may experience God's love as we grow together in faith, love and service

At the Crossroads

There is a sacred, heavy space between who we were and who we are becoming, between the prayer we whispered and the answer we await.

It is a place where our knees may tremble, where the temptation to cling to control or settle for a life of low expectations pulls at our souls.

Yet, it is precisely at this crossroads where our beauty and our brokenness meet and that grace refuses to walk past us.

Today, may we find the courage to drop our defenses, to let go of our own terms, and to look upon one another with the eyes of Christ.

We are not left outside the gate; resurrection is breaking in, interrupting the lie that nothing can change, and inviting us to finally stand, leap, and live.
