Call to Worship

L: At God’s table, we are not meant to keep our eyes on our own plate.

C: We look around. We notice. We make room.

L: We ask the person beside us, “Do you have enough?”

C: And when we have something to share, we pass it along.

L: This is how grace moves—from hand to hand, from heart to heart.

C: There is enough when we learn to share what we have.

L: So come to the table. Bring what you have. Notice who is beside you.

All: And let us worship the God who teaches us to pass the grace around.

Offertory Prayer (Read in Unison)

Gracious God, you have given us more than we can hold for ourselves. Teach us to look around the table, notice who is beside us, and ask what love requires. Receive these gifts and use them to feed, serve, welcome, and care for others. May what we place in your hands become grace passed from one life to another. Amen.

Postlude Marni Wiggins

We exist to reflect the love of Jesus so that others may experience God’s love as we grow together in faith, love and service

Passing Grace

There is a moment at every shared table when someone stops thinking only about what is on their own plate.

A bowl is lifted. Bread is passed. Someone notices an empty glass. Someone asks, “Do you have enough?”

Maybe that is what love looks like most of the time. Not grand. Not dramatic. Just paying attention. Just refusing to live as though what we have is ours alone. Paul said we are called to freedom, but freedom is not the freedom to clutch tighter.

It is the freedom to love, to serve, to pass something along.

Grace has a way of moving like that from hand to hand, plate to plate, heart to heart until somehow the table becomes bigger than we thought it was.
