If you are looking for ways to be creative at home, local businesses continue to provide outlets for creativity. Last week some businesses were highlighted that are offering kits to be picked up or delivered. Community businesses continue to address the need for activities to do while adhering to the stay-at-home order. Here are some additional ideas:

- The Chickadee Design Center and Amy’s Corner are also offering at home activities for residents.
  - Amy’s Corner is offering free virtual guided art projects. Many of these projects require simple items that can be found around the home. Follow along with videos and pictures.
    - Call (530) 250-6020 or go to their website at http://www.amyscorner.art or the Amy’s Corner Facebook page for more information.
  - The Chickadee Design Center is also putting together kits for design projects.
    - Call (530) 250-6020 or check out their website at http://www.chickadeedesigncenter.com/ or The Chickadee Design Center Facebook page for more information.

- Susanville Supermarket IGA and Margie’s Book Nook have also come together to provide activity products for purchase at Susanville Supermarket IGA. There is a table set up with puzzles, games, and other activities that can be purchased during your grocery shopping.

- Many local families are also taking part in Bear Hunts. Families can go for a walk or drive around neighborhoods to spot bears in windows of local residents’ homes.

To adhere to social distancing, please call businesses ahead of time to set up pick-up times so that you may continue to adhere to social distancing. If possible, limit the number of individuals that make trips to local businesses.
