Things You Should Know Going Into the Weekend

Facts from this Week:

Roadmap to Recovery for Lassen County:

Our Roadmap to Recovery for Lassen County is pending approval from the Governor and State Public Health Officer.

Message from the Lassen Office of Education:

Lassen County Superintendent of Schools Patricia Gunderson issued a brief statement Wednesday on behalf of school districts across the county. She outlined plans for the start of school in the fall and clarified how the county is providing for the educational needs of students. "As the COVID-19 outbreak continues to evolve, our school districts, County Office of Education, and charter schools in Lassen County remain diligent in our efforts to provide families with essential services, support student wellness and ensure continuity of our students' education," Gunderson said in the statement.

Things You Should Know for Next

Week: More information will be in the next weekday edition.

Mass Testing:

Lassen County will be conducting mass testing at Lassen Community College before the end of the month. The Public Health Department secured 16,000 tests from the State and plan to use their mobile flu clinic unit that they train for each year.

"Stay Health Informed" Campaign for Businesses Reopening:

Everyone want Lassen County businesses to reopen as soon as possible! Part of getting ready is making sure each business is prepared with the resources they need to say stay safe, remain healthy, and recover financially.
