

Reentry Simulation Invitation

“Especially for You!”

There are over 2 million people currently incarcerated and an estimated 70 million individuals with criminal records. Most individuals who are incarcerated will be released back into the community. These individuals undergo difficulty connecting to employment, housing, education, medical care, and behavioral health care.

This unique in-person event will allow community members and leaders to experience the complicated, and often biased, reality of navigating services after release from incarceration. Following the simulation, we will have a panel discussion with experts with lived experience to discuss the challenges faced during reentry and share ideas for ways together we can help to address various challenges encountered.
