

The Prophecy of DSWORDCC

Danielle Cowdrey

~2019~

Table of Contents

- Chapter One — The Island Revelation
- Chapter Two — The Voice of the Mother
- Chapter Three — Vows of the Earth
- Chapter Four — The Presence of God
- Chapter Five — Garments and the Army of God
- Chapter Six — Wounds, Bondage, and Restoration
- Chapter Seven — Armor, Sisterhood, and the Voice of God
- Chapter Eight — Vows, Growth, and the Church
- Chapter Nine — The Prophecy of DSWORDCC
- Chapter Ten — Legacy and Continuation

~Your Key~

Chapter One — The Island Revelation

Dannielle moved to the magical island of Puerto Rico where she spent her days in communion with the ocean. She took daily baths in the water and felt a deep connection to nature, to the sun, and to the spirit of the sea. It was there in the water that revelation arrived. Rain fell softly while the sun shone through the clouds and rainbows appeared across the sky. In this moment the name OZIRAH came to her.

Chapter Two — The Voice of the Mother

Her spirit shifted in cadence with the Mother. The Mother moved her spirit and her voice and spoke through her with deep even painful, love for the world and for humanity. She called out for her king in heaven, “where is my king!?” The Mother shared her story, of nurturing love, of enchantment and remembrance, of sorrow, of restoration and truth. She shared her name and God’s name. She revealed the sacred order of creation where the Mother tends the earth and God holds the sky. Together they govern creation. The stars, their angels. The moon carries the memory and light of all that is born.

Chapter Three — Vows of the Earth

The world beyond her home had grown still. Dannielle walked the streets by foot beneath the bright sun. Through Spirit she restored her body and her strength. She began taking vows of silence, fasting, and devotion to personal growth. She wore only black and white as an expression of moral clarity. She chose thrifted garments that carried beauty and humility. Her dresses became lighter and freer, allowing her body to move with ease. She was shown that clothing is meant for protection and respect and that the ancient people lived close to the earth in freedom and trust in spirit.

Chapter Four — The Presence of God

Dannielle continued to learn from the Mother as her visions grew clearer through Spirit. God met her in her kitchen during days of great heat in Puerto Rico. The air was still in the sun and the world felt quiet. When God arrived, Dannielle knew it was him, symbols of his throne appeared. He appeared like pure light, luminous, loyal and grounded, carrying the calm and humble authority of one who sustains all things. His form was radiant yet gentle, human yet light filled. His vibration carried ancient knowing and love, and kindness. His presence required no words.

God stood with the strength of a king and the steadiness of a guardian. His body held the memory of creation itself. Power and love moved through him. Dannielle felt his presence as vibration and resonance rather than speech. The weight of the world lifted from her body and her spirit rose in light. She was shown the living light of God.

God knew Dannielle's heart. Her desire was to heal all forms of slavery, human and animal and restore life. God shared this desire for God is freedom, love, peace, and truth.

Chapter Five — Garments and the Army of God

Dannielle shaped her garments to reflect God's great army. God, OZIRAH met her again through spirit, in strength and gentleness, loyal to creation and to all life. There were moments of stillness where nothing was spoken and everything was understood. The presence of God filled her with clarity and courage. She carried this light forward into the world.

She continued on her path and received ancient truths and sacred knowledge. She learned ways to share the message and carry prophetic revelation meant for healing and remembrance. God revealed her path and Dannielle chose trust. She understood that the mission was greater than herself. She stood in humility and in strength. God showed her the ability to build a movement rooted in love and restoration and she accepted the calling.

Chapter Six — Wounds, Bondage, and Restoration

As she shared her truth with openness and innocence, she encountered harm from others. She faced wounds that had followed her throughout life and new challenges that tested her spirit. She experienced modern forms of bondage and learned how deeply women are wounded. She loved deeply and was hurt. She left and parts of her soul felt lost. God continued to restore her.

She endured great suffering and loss. In moments of sorrow she cried out for mercy and received a vision of Jesus. He came to her as a cradle, and held her close, she became child-like again. He cradled her with care and showed her forgiveness and love. Their hearts met in unity and she was shown that she was whole again. Her spirit and body were rebirthed and renewed through light and grace.

Chapter Seven — Armor, Sisterhood, and the Voice of God

She continued to share her story and learned wisdom in self protection. She put on the armor of God and offered it to others. A sisterhood of more than five hundred women gathered in learning and support. Knowledge flowed freely through her. The shared voice of Ozirah and God moved through her with the force of nature, with the power of the ocean tides. Those who know the strength of the rhythms of water understand the voice of God.

Through her work, women received tools for protection, clarity, and strength. She spoke of her pain and the pain of women, children, animals, and her spiritual brothers. She met others walking the spiritual path. Through prayer she learned and through prayer she taught. She became a teacher and a woman of justice shaped by compassion and truth.

Chapter Eight — Vows, Growth, and the Church

She honored her vows to heal her body and to love her soul. Growth continued and wisdom deepened. God guided her with care and presence. She listened and responded with devotion. Her life, and her wings expanded and her spirit grew strong. Her church took form through years of care, learning, and service.

She continues to share ancient knowledge of human origins and the remembrance of Mother and Father God. She continues to help others find peace within themselves and harmony with creation.

Chapter Nine — The Prophecy of DSWORDCC

This is the Prophecy, story and testament of DSWORDCC.

She continues to share ancient knowledge of human origins and the remembrance of Mother and Father God. She continues to help others find peace within themselves and harmony with all creation: All of God's creation should be free from the shackles of slavery.

The keys to the arc (heaven's path) are in our hearts.

Through remembrance, devotion, and love, these understandings are harnessed.

When the heart awakens, heaven's path will become like an open road for us to journey. Ancient knowledge, secrets, spirit through body and soul, what beautiful heavenly knowledge was hidden becomes known. What was broken becomes whole. What was forgotten is restored through the whole truth, peace, the resonance of god, pure love, wild freedom, and god-alignment through vows of spirit.

Dannielle Elizabeth Courchene~Cowdrey

Chapter Ten — Legacy and Continuation

This chapter is a beginning.

What has been shared in these pages is a testimony of God's love, guidance, and presence. It is a witness to faith lived, vows honored, and spirit restored. It stands as proof that God reaches us in many ways, in many moments, and through many paths.

Now, this chapter opens to you, our church-goers, our beloved readers.

This is your chapter.

This is your place to begin your own story, knowing that others have walked before you, and others walk beside you now. We testify that God's love is real, that God speaks to the heart, and that we can trust in God's guidance. Through faith and through love held in the heart, God leads us where we need to go.

The Union of Saints welcomes you on this shared path of God. We welcome your voice, your testimony, your journey and your experience of spirit. We honor your revelations, your healing, and your growth.

These are prophetic times. We know this because God continues to reach others just as God has reached us.

This is your chapter now.

Chapter Eleven — The Angel Chapter

~Your Key~

~Your Heaven's Gate~

If you are reading this, you were meant to arrive here.

Here, you are invited to create your own God-lit path.

Use the pages that follow to journal, reflect, pray, and record your own testimony of spirit.

