

If You Are American, You Are Bigger Than One Category

America contains many cultures, histories, and traditions.
But our shared identity is not meant to shrink us into boxes.

We are more than race.
More than ancestry.
More than political tribe.

The American mainstream, at its best~y~best is about loving participation.

It is a space where music crosses neighborhoods.
Where ideas travel beyond origin.
Where individuals are judged by character and contribution.

Culture may begin in one community.
But in America, it can belong to everyone.

To be American is to share in something larger than division.
It is to recognize that while our stories differ, our humanity does not.

Gratitude reminds us of this.

Gratitude for those who built before us.
Gratitude for the freedoms we exercise.
Gratitude for the cultures that enrich the common table.

Gratitude is greater than ego.

And every one of US is bigger than one category.

~We are the USA.~

Follow your dreams & do not forget ALL of your people!
Stay ~T~ all!
~Cowdrey