

Statement of Position

International Trade, Domestic Trade

The Union of Saints affirms the position of the President and relevant national security and economic policy bodies with respect to the use of tariffs and trade measures. Such policies are understood as strategic tools designed to incentivize the relocation of manufacturing and supply chains to the United States, thereby strengthening domestic industry, economic resilience, and national security.

In this regard, the Union of Saints recognizes the administration's ongoing efforts to rebalance trade relationships and promote domestic production. These measures reflect a broader policy objective of reducing external dependencies while fostering sustainable economic growth within the United States.

The Union of Saints supports lawful, evidence-based trade policy initiatives that prioritize the long-term stability, security, and prosperity of the nation.
