

Anti-France Protests

Sources:

- <https://www.yahoo.com/news/anti-france-protests-continue-macron-142029665.html>
- <https://globalnews.ca/news/7435552/anti-france-protests-pakistan/>
- <https://www.dw.com/en/muhammad-cartoon-row-anti-france-protests-erupt-across-muslim-world/a-55448696>
- France has a right to free speech.
- We do not support Islamic extremism.
- We do not support activist violence.
- We do not support racist and hateful attacks against those perceived as “White Europeans.”
- Islamic/Muslim activism has reached levels of warfare and terrorist violence.
- We feel that deportations and denaturalizations are the most humane way to mitigate war posed by migrants.
- We do not support unnecessary violence; however, we do support the native people’s right to self-defense of their homelands, especially against foreign movements that pose an active risk of destroying their communities and country.
- We find it is therefore reasonable to support defense, and it should not be shocking if the people, police, or military defend themselves against targeted attacks. People have a right to self-defense, whether they are in uniform or not.
- We do not support activist retaliation when people defend themselves from the violence activists pose against others and recognize activists have lacked integrity and humanity.
- We feel the bulk of the brutality, at historic and atrocity levels, is stemming from the activists and the crimefare they have enabled, created, and perpetuated.
- We are grateful for all of those who stood on the side of the war that fought traffickers, violent criminals, rapists, looters, and arsonists, and who protected our families against activist, terrorist, and crimefarist harms.

We stand with France. We stand with the victims of the migrant and domestic protesters.

- We do not stand with the protestors or the activists who have caused grave and destructive harms to France.

“He didn’t understand it. So he attacked it.” Isn’t that what barbarians do?