America is UNDER ATTACK: The Pentagon just ordered America's top universities to come clean about their deep ties to China, Russia, and Iran.

Harvard, MIT, Georgetown, and 27 other schools must complete a full audit of academic, financial, and research partnerships with foreign entities of concern by August 31 or risk losing federal research funding.

Harvard alone took more than $600 million from Chinese sources, more than any other U.S. university.

Investigators found 140 research partnerships involving Chinese military-linked institutions, including universities under the People's Liberation Army's influence and the "Seven Sons of National Defense."

A Pentagon-funded weapons class at one Midwest university was taught in Mandarin to Chinese nationals.

Dozens of researchers who worked on Pentagon projects later moved to Chinese military-linked roles.

This is the classic communist infiltration playbook: buy access to American research, place people inside the labs, extract technology, and turn elite campuses into soft-power and espionage platforms.

American universities have spent years taking Beijing's money while claiming academic freedom. The bill is now coming due.

The question is whether these schools will actually sever the dangerous relationships or just paper over them until the next grant cycle.
