I feel there is more to Panettiere's case. She was so young, and it seems that there was a lot she was navigating.

Some questions would be:

Did she overdose?

Who prescribed her the medication?

Which pharmacists were involved?

Were any Russian or Ukrainian activists involved?

Who was in her immediate circle?

What caused so much of her suffering and grief?

Were there other issues surrounding the cause of her brother's death?

Why was her daughter taken to Ukraine and not returned to her during a war in which her father was an active soldier?

What harm could this type of relationship cause an American? An American woman?

Knowing that her former partner is a high profile Ukrainian soldier, what war crimes or threats might this expose her to from Russians or Russian Americans who are not neutral in the war?

Were there any organized crime rings that had access to her?

Was this death caused by heartache from being separated from her daughter? Was it a form of genocide by proxy?

How did the weight of America's current climate involving modern slavery harm her psyche, especially knowing that Russians were taking Ukrainian children?

I hope the investigation is thorough and that her family and friends are okay and given comfort during this time of grief. She seemed like a very beautiful and kind person. She was too young.
