

Adjusting to Newcomer Racism Against Whites, Slavery, Proxy War

Images Included On Armor Up:

Time to adjust our eyes to recognize White Racism and not only call it out, but penalize it, just like any other form of racism:

This image highlights a growing problem in the United States, the use of blame-shifting and derogatory racist labels to silence Americans who speak up for American values.

Increasingly, individuals who are new to this country, or who align with activist subcultures, respond to disagreement by attacking identity rather than engaging in discussion. White Americans, in particular, are often targeted with demeaning, racist labels such as “Karen” when they assert boundaries, raise concerns, or express healthy, historic American values.

This blame-shifting tactic reframes healthy American expression as racism and shifts blame away from inappropriate foreign flag raising. These experiences can be described as foreign intimidation of the American people.

This pattern reflects broader psychological and social warfare, what I refer to as the modern BLAMESOVJF+ war, which aims to divide, demoralize, and delegitimize Americans within their own country. The goal may not be destabilization, but this is what is happening.

Public shaming, racialized insults, and identity-based dismissal of Americans defending their homefront values should not be normalized or tolerated in our society.

Child Smuggling Case Uncovered At Traffic Stop, Yet Ice Protests Continue At Cost

This is common now where I am currently living. Unfortunately, they discovered the body of a missing Navajo girl just the other day. So, after many years of studying slavery and war, and now being back in Arizona after roughly 16 years (I was here in 2010 and also in 2013), I am heartbroken, but also tired, and I feel Americans deserve so much better, and that's my answer.

No, I do not like the racism here, and I definitely do not think it is fair to the American people to have their entire cultures replaced with Mexico's. Sorry, Mexicans in Mexico would feel just the same, and they know this as well. There is guilt, and shame, and there is abuse of the American people. Of course, it is always framed as the fault of “white colonizers,” but we must ignore that a young girl was killed and another innocent child was smuggled...
