

Our Discovery

Modern colonials, immigrants, and territorial invaders, especially those who have strong aims to “decolonize” or change America from within, particularly by harming White Americans, have posed a great and severe risk to Americans. We feel that they should return to their own indigenous lands. America is not a territory to “conquer.” We are a people who share rich ancestry, heritage, and DNA with this land.

Modern invaders have taken all that we had to give, and still it was not enough. They want political power and territorial control. They are hurting the American people. We feel they represent a modern derangement, and that they are causing our heritage, places, and people to enter a diaspora, yet our rich historical memory as Americans remains.

Our territory is being distorted by these invaders, and we call our spirit back. All that was taken, all that has been carried away, and all that was kept ungratefully from the American people, we call our spirit back to us now. We call our people back. We call our soul back from all those who sought to compete with and conquer us.

All that has been taken, we call back to America, to our people, to the spirit of the land, and to the ancestors who watch over us. We call all of our love, spirit, and that which has been taken back to our people and to our home, which we call America.

We ask that invaders leave, that America is no longer a refuge for those who seek to harm us. Our spirit has been greatly afflicted by modern colonials. They have not only harmed our people but have sought to erode our values, traditions, and culture. They have sought to erase our culture and our history.

They have sought to ethnically cleanse the American people and bring millions upon millions into American territory in order to replace us with their own cultures. They have lied to and manipulated us. Worse, they have vilified and targeted us, amplifying our historical hardships into a modern race war in which they targeted us and attempted to make our people fight one another.

They have promoted a civil war on our soil against our people, and yet they are not a people who are from here. They are not truly Americans. Therefore, we call our spirit back, and we ask their spirit to leave, to leave and never return.

THE AMERICAN TERRITORY AND SPIRIT BELONGS ONLY TO AMERICANS.
