War on Whites and Left Washing of American History

Modern Propaganda Wars

- It isn't news, it's an attack on American history, reality, and Americans.
- It is unrealistic to deny modern realities and the injustices all humans have faced, and to tell the narrative only from the Left perspective and point of view.
- It isn't just propaganda or news, it's an ideological warfront that is actively attacking American White members of society based on historical half truths and extreme perspectives and views.
- It is simply an attack against Americans and a political warfront.

It is very much one thing to have an online debate, but to take to our news outlets and to completely take over in "foreign and domestic enemy" air raid fashion, and to actively attempt to alter the perception of Americans in a way that sabotages the American way of life is very much another thing. These are not just "news" articles, they are mass negative propaganda campaigns against an American population. It serves as a form of ethnic cleansing, racial targeting, and Holocaust. Despite left wing propaganda and very "young" mindsets that like to behave as if they know it all, all American lives have value. This extreme storytelling is mounting as a war front.

Furthermore, injustices occurred across many time periods, many races, and many experiences. Our modern experience may not be compared to the experience of centuries previously. It is not a form of "racial justice" to vilify a modern American for an experience that occurred in the 1400s through the 1600s, and it is ridiculous to do so. Furthermore, earlier settlements are not modern colonialism and are far from it.

The experience in America in the 1400s versus today cannot be so brashly compared. Much of America at this time was dense forest and undeveloped land, which people traveled through in wagons and on horseback. Early settlers braved harsh conditions, including winter, and foraged from the land. Many were not subject to colonial army powers such as the British Crown, and were actively seeking refuge in America from persecution, foreign wars, and slavery.

Black slavery in America occurred predominantly in the South, whereas White slavery in America occurred predominantly in the North. Black males were able to vote before any females, including White females. This domestic and foreign propaganda conjoins foreign enemies in their attempt to alter demographics and create manufactured tensions between the races.

It is a real threat to imbalance history in such a way that Americans are unable to see themselves in their present experience and are only receiving the story of foreigners who have invaded our country against the will of the American people. This unruly domination of the media is a propaganda heist by the extreme and radical Left and can be viewed as a mass collective guilt and blame campaign, which is the same form of propaganda that the Nazis in Germany used. Americans have a right to their history and their present experience. This history and ownership is not by the extreme Left, foreigners, anti White clans, immigrants, or adversaries. Americans have a right to their history, identity, freedom, safety, security and way of life.

The continuation of mass negative propaganda campaigns against the American people is not just news; it is a form of modern warfare.
