

Drones, Pesticides

Given the wars and increasing national-security risks associated with foreign-controlled drone technology and potentially unidentified UAS activity over the American population, particularly hovering and privacy concerns witnessed in the South and Southwest, the United States should consider a temporary moratorium or substantially tighter restrictions to counter any potentially negative foreign activity. President Trump has already tightened some restrictions on drones and foreign drone imports. I feel the same regarding pesticide use. Less than 1 teaspoon can be fatal if inhaled. It is both a financial and health risk, also witnessed in the South, spraying oncoming traffic, major health harms.

Sources:

<https://www.faa.gov/newsroom/small-unmanned-aircraft-systems-uas-regulations-part-107>

https://www.faa.gov/uas/resources/foreign_operators

<https://www.reuters.com/world/us/trump-administration-impose-tariffs-drone-imports-white-house-says-2026-08-13>

<https://www.youtube.com/shorts/7xxmqcBNeU0>

