

DEI by Cowdrey

Summary:

We have rested our case, and now white Americans brace for the challenges ahead, not only of becoming a minority race, but also of increasing polarization, foreign pressure, and exponentially increased racism and racial targeting.

A Poetic Critique

*Not only do I get to pay for programs that seek to exclude my race and American citizens, but I also get schooled on why my race is in excess, as I witness foreigners and people of all other races take my place, regardless of whether they are racist toward whites or not.

I also get to be:

Abused.

Enslaved.

Tortured.

Subjugated.

Sabotaged.

Silenced.

Oppressed.

Subjected to crimes against humanity.

Called hateful names.

Subjected to microaggressions in everyday interactions.

Shot at if I express concern.

Mocked and put down.

Marginalized.

Turned into a minority.

Forced to watch my culture overshadowed by others.

Witness foreign flags raised on campus.

Experience foreign terrorism.

Hide from school shootings.

And still,

I watch these programs expand.

Because my color is a problem.

Sources:

- <https://ipmnewsroom.org/instead-of-ending-dei-university-of-illinois-will-add-open-to-all-language-to-websites/>
- https://news.illinois.edu/political-populism-transatlantic-relations/?utm_source=ilhomepage&utm_medium=web

- <https://aflegal.org/investigations/organ-donation-modernization-initiative/>
- For our empirical analysis please review our research data packs and supporting FBI data.

Critique of “Political Populism Transatlantic Relations:”

Simply by examining logical fallacies, and of course, by having a heart, one can show concern for native American citizens during what was the worst invasion and slavery movement in human history, with white Americans targeted the most. Universities, students, and academic writers who do not understand basic writing logic are behind the times.

Examples of fallacies from the article include:

- Straw man characterization of Trump-era policy
- False cause linking populism to global institutional decline
- Slippery slope claims about institutional collapse
- Hasty generalizations about the end of the transatlantic order
- Appeal-to-fear language
- False dichotomies about Europe acting alone
- Normative framing presented as objective fact

→ Free speech does not come without scrutiny, especially when the article is endorsed on the front of your university’s web page.

End the university war on white Americans.

→ Money, money, money.

One university’s statistics, for example:

Illinois Institute of Technology frequently ranks among the top institutions, with a 2025 report showing 51% of its student body as international students.

Total enrollment data indicates that white students make up approximately 21.6% of the total student population (this figure includes international students).

Despite this, the university still maintains robust DEI initiatives.

<https://www.iit.edu/diversity>

Raj Echambadi of Chennai became president of Illinois Institute of Technology on August 16, 2021, following the pandemic.
