Educational Attainment: White Republican Men vs. Black Democratic Men

+ Gay Vs. Straight

“Don’t buy the Democratic lie” — the truth is our reality! The truth is also in the data and shows a different side of us than what they want us to believe.

Overview

Comparing the educational attainment of White Republican men and Black Democratic men requires data that accounts for race, sex, political affiliation, and education simultaneously. General statistics about Republicans, Democrats, White Americans, or Black Americans cannot independently establish which of these two specific groups has more education.

Political Affiliation and Education

According to Pew Research Center's April 2024 report, Changing Partisan Coalitions in a Politically Divided Nation:

- White men without a bachelor's degree: 64% of White male registered voters without a four-year degree identified as or leaned Republican.*
- Black voters with a college degree: 79% identified as or leaned Democratic.*

These figures describe political affiliation within educational groups. The Black voter figures include men and women and therefore cannot be treated as statistics specifically for Black Democratic men.

Gay men vs. straight men

Gay men generally had higher educational attainment in the datasets studied.

Lesbian women vs. straight women

Lesbian women also showed an educational advantage in the study.

Source

Pew Research Center. (2024, April 9). Changing partisan coalitions in a politically divided nation: Partisanship by race, ethnicity and education.

https://www.pewresearch.org/politics/2024/04/09/partisanship-by-race-ethnicity-and-education/