

The Language of the Dialogue Has Shaped Perception

This is the “power” of negative propaganda.

It has been normalized for the “white population” to commit suicide, to be harmed, to suffer in slavery, to be victims of medical negligence by other races, to be vilified for standing up for their rights, to be stolen from, to be abused, to be victims of the drug war, to be “ghettoized” and left on the streets, to be labeled “trash” and subjected to other harmful expressions, to be replaced, to be “minoritized” and never prioritized, and to never have their suffering acknowledged, either in history or in the present.

Activism and political movements have further normalized experiences of modern “Nazism,” mass targeting in systemized rape campaigns, and genocided Christian identity, alongside a rapidly dwindling population as a result of rape campaign eugenics.

The Union of Saints concludes its research by expressing that it is deeply harmful how language has shifted perception to the point of genocide against whites.

I began my research as a Democrat and supported movements such as BLM as a white person. I studied modern slavery, human and animal, as well as war and the pandemic. I traveled to many places and experienced many different societies. I studied population shifts and emerging demographic and cultural changes.

I conclude my research without bias and call it as I see it. I view a female-targeted genocide and a world war against girls and women. I see labor slaveries affecting men of all colors. I see a White Holocaust.

My concern at this time is focused toward the “white race,” which is “rapidly disappearing” while also experiencing “Nazi” propaganda campaigns in which blame is shifted onto white people for simply acknowledging this reality.

I believe we are in dangerous territory. Where any other race “disappearing” would shock the conscience, it is acceptable when applied to whites. This discussion is often automatically labeled as “supremacist” or “racist.” It is clear that the language shaping this discourse mirrors World War II tactics, and these tactics are not only cruel and lack humanity, but also adopt positions of war rhetoric against the white population.

Moving Forward

I call on Democrats to stand down, as I feel their movements have gone too far and today represent evil. I feel reality has been “reshaped” to fit the mold of supporting one black race while actively normalizing and even celebrating the elimination of the white race. I move to support the Republicans in their fight to save Americans from modern war, slavery, historic invasion and further harms, including modern injustices against white people.
