

The War Against Women, Witches, Feminists, and Beyond

The cultural genocide we witness is spiritual slavery. Free her.

Women have been called witches, evil, immoral, dangerous, hysterical, radical, and unfeminine. Women who speak openly, challenge authority, defend themselves, or demand equal treatment have often been attacked for doing so. The demonization of women has been used to silence women, punish women, control women, and deny women a voice.

Women accused of witchcraft were persecuted, imprisoned, tortured, and executed. Feminists have been attacked and condemned for demanding rights, independence, equality, and freedom. The hatred and demonization directed toward women has taken many forms, but the harm against women remains a very real experience today.

Women should not have to surrender their identity, their voices, their bodies, their freedom, or their souls to be accepted. Women have the right to speak, defend themselves, and stand against those who seek to control or silence them. The war against women must end.

We, the “spiritual saints” of today, make this demand: the war and abuse against women must end, or else we will continue to experience great imbalance. The slavery of women, of sisters, of spiritual ladies, of all spirit, must end. This is the choice that men alone must make.

We are calling for an end to women’s slavery, the notion that they must surrender to men in an inhuman or anti-feminine, anti-spiritual way. We demand that this war end. We draw the line with our bodies, minds and spirits here.

There will never be balance between men and women until men are willing to surrender to the reality that a woman’s identity is not His. Not under his power, his ownership, or authority. He can try, but we can continue to witness how these karmic imbalances backfire.

Until a man is willing to see women for who she is, without his imprint, without his forced identity upon her, and without his coercion, shaming, and guilting, women and men will remain imbalanced and at war.

She is a fully autonomous soul with creative instinct and spirit, honored by God and Goddess, made in their image, not in the image of man. Man must learn to give way to this understanding, or they will never see eye to eye, they will never truly meet at Soul. She will remain a Great Pretender, rather than the natural woman, in soul and spirit that she is. This lie and false story is not fair to our humanity or our world. It is not the story that we should pass down, nor birth. Here, God leads to the way for us to see this truth too. Love is an act of freedom.

For God is more gracious and sincere than man will ever be, and he must be willing to surrender to this, that his idea of God, or his idea of woman, does not actually define her, nor does she, nor does her soul belong to him. They may share a bond, a loving relationship, and even marriage and one union, still, she is never, by God and Goddess, an object to be subject to him, to be controlled by him, or owned by him. She is a free spirit by the design of our God.

No woman belongs to a man, not her spirit, identity, earthly belongings, ideas, values, or beliefs. She, by the will of God, has freedom of identity and choice. Choice belongs to both man and woman.

So long as men make the choice that they will actively seek to dominate her spirit and soul through coercive and abusive means, there will always be imbalance on the earth. The same is true of abusive dominion over any creature, all children of God.

So long as women, children, or animals are abused by men, all men, this includes women, there will never be balance, and this is the “curse” of God and the karma of God. Until we are willing to learn this lesson, there will always be great suffering between us all.

We must learn to free one another and be free.
