OSIRAM is “entitlement,” “intrusive,” and “power and control,” as well as “manipulations,” “twisting,” and “abusive behaviors.” It also includes “use of force.”

Women are often not as physically domineering as men; however, both can use force and often do so as a result of anger, hostility, revenge, or retaliation.

Thankfully, no one physically assaulted Ms. Bennett. However, they did try to block her, verbally assault her, grab her phone, and manipulate the situation so that they had “overreaching power.” They used intimidation, group triangulation or mob tactics, attempted to silence her, “disrupt” her journalism, shamed her, and threatened to physically assault her.

Very hurtful group of people. Activists do not have to agree on every issue, but respecting others is basic human decency. It is a basic value.
