

White Population (American) Destabilization

Census year White population

1850	99.0%
1860	85.0%
1870	89.1%
1880	88.7%
1890	91.6%
1900	94.5%

- Today, 32.5% of California's population is non-Hispanic White.
- This represents a 60%+ demographic population shift and cultural change in just 100–126 years.
- Sadly, these are not all “friendly” racial changes and often come with the territory of anti-Native White American racism.
- As well, cross-border alliances seek to dismantle the U.S. and its borders.

Once 99%

- 2.91 million in California culture are not authorized to be there.
- 7.4%+ of the population is not authorized.
- Genocide: Under the 1948 Genocide Convention, genocide requires certain prohibited acts committed with the specific intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnic, racial, or religious group as such. A demographic decline alone does not establish that intent.
- Is the White population stable in California?
- No. California's non-Hispanic White population has declined in both absolute numbers and as a percentage of the state's population in recent decades. Census figures show the following:

Year Non-Hispanic White population Share of California

1990	17.03 million	57.2%
2000	15.82 million	46.7%
2010	14.96 million	40.1%
2020	13.71 million	34.7%
2023	13.36 million	—
2024	12.84 million	32.6%

What this means:

- From 1990 to 2024, the non-Hispanic White population fell by approximately 4.19 million people, or about 24.6%.
- Its share of California's population fell by 24.6 percentage points, from 57.2% to 32.6%.

- These statistics describe the non-Hispanic White category, not everyone with European ancestry. Some people of European ancestry identify as Hispanic, multiracial, or otherwise outside that category.

How Were Whites Targeted in California by Other Races?

White people in California have experienced violence, discrimination, and targeted attacks at different points in the state's history. To understand how they were targeted by people of other racial or ethnic groups, it helps to distinguish documented attacks against White individuals from political conflicts, labor disputes, and racial violence.

It is also important to examine each period separately. California's history includes violence against White settlers and residents, as well as extensive state-sanctioned violence against Indigenous people, discrimination against Chinese immigrants, and conflicts involving Mexican Californios and other communities.

Documented Examples of Violence Against White Californians

1. Gold Rush-era attacks and banditry

During the mid-1800s, California experienced robberies, murders, and violent conflicts involving people from multiple backgrounds. Mexican bandit groups, including the gang associated with Joaquín Murrieta, attacked and killed people of different backgrounds, including White residents. These were criminal acts, and the evidence does not establish that all such attacks were motivated by racial hostility.

Source: Oxford Academic

2. The 1855 Rancheria massacre

In Amador County, a group of predominantly Mexican men murdered five White people and one Indigenous man in the mining settlement of Lower Rancheria. The killings were followed by retaliatory violence from White mobs, including the lynching of Mexican men and the forced departure of Mexican and Chilean residents. This is an example of an incident in which people were attacked across racial and ethnic lines, followed by collective retaliation against people who were not necessarily responsible.

Source: California State University, Sacramento

3. Conflicts involving Indigenous resistance

Some Indigenous groups resisted the arrival of settlers, miners, and ranchers who occupied their lands. Individual settlers were killed in conflicts involving land, resources, and resistance to settlement. However, these incidents occurred within a much larger historical context in which Indigenous Californians experienced mass killings, forced removal, enslavement, and dispossession under U.S. rule. Historians have documented the devastating scale of this violence.

Source: Oxford Academic

What the Historical Record Establishes

There are documented cases of White Californians being murdered, robbed, or attacked by individuals from other ethnic groups.

- Individual attacks: Crimes committed by particular people against particular victims.
- Intergroup conflicts: Violence involving land, labor, political power, or resistance to settlement.
- Systematic persecution: Organized violence or government policies directed against people because of their racial or ethnic identity.

Examples of intergroup conflicts may include historical catastrophic damage caused by “Black,” “Jewish,” and “Hispanic” movements.

The overall energy is destruction of the White race, “abolishing Whites,” or dismantling “White supremacy.”

We feel that the targeted attacks, hatred, and racism are historically deep-rooted, the cases are exhaustive, and the evidence is conclusive enough to label our experience a White genocide.

We feel that the White race is being destabilized by forced modern colonialism, aggravated harms caused by modern racial PACs, racism, and relentless racial targeting of Whites.