Acadian Catholic Heritage Groups Are Not Asking for Permission ❤

We are preserving our heritage, educating our children, honoring our ancestors, and building places where our faith, culture, and history can continue for generations to come.

Our heritage is not something we need permission to remember. Our faith is not something we need permission to practice. And our commitment to cultural preservation is not something we need permission to pursue.

Through Mary Bella's and the Union of Saints, we are standing up for our community and our family. We can respect others while standing proudly in our own history, and we can advocate for our communities while treating every person with respect.

We are not asking permission to exist. We are taking responsibility for preserving who we are. ❤
