

The Jewish Confederacy Is Intergovernmental

The Jewish Confederacy comprises of innocent people, all kinds of people, including Americans.

However, there has also been targeting by certain individuals.

Much like many activism groups, they contain “rogue actors.”

In the advent of the war in Russia and the war in Israel, there was an increase in “radicalism” or “extremist activism.”

Between the ending of the Palestine war and the challenged “government rulings” of Israeli benefits over the people, the “front” has “toned” down.

Each individual has a “sphere,” I prefer to call this a “humanity sphere.”

Where the Holocaust in Germany occurred and is energetically charged within Jewish circles, Jewish people all over the world chose to move forward with intelligence and stratagem.

How do I feel as an American?

The heart of the American Jew, or Jews overseas, is not “commonly” hurtful or wanting to cause pain to others.

The aforementioned is true, that there are harmful characters within these spheres.

There are harmful characters outside the Jewish spheres, as we have witnessed many aggressors targeting Jewish people. For example, the recent synagogue crash and gunfire incidents.

Politics and activism are very complicated. There are positive movements, enemy movements, human rights movements, and humanity movements, as with all wars, they are as complicated as the heart of the soldier.

Where I am not Jewish in a religious sense, and I am not an immigrant from Russia, and I am not an Israeli, rather an American of Canadian descent, I naturally feel “outside” of these paradigms of life, yet I understand the natural inclination to protect.

My position is that where targeting has occurred, especially against the American people, justice in the form of mediation, legal remedies, and through criminal penalties is warranted.

The judicial “protection” of a people is not an isolated need and therefore should be a mutually held understanding.

Where Cold War actions occurred and “Kompromat” was used as a tactic of war or interpersonal violence, these crimes should be righted so victims may once again have peace.

I do not share the views of the radical masses and remain against civilian targeting during war. Palestine is a grave example.

I am very angered by the methods of war used against Palestinians, including humiliation and the targeting of civilians, and I feel others outside of Palestine have also fallen victim to this.

Modern atrocities must be addressed with sober minds.

My case discoveries were haunting. Archaic religious rites that cause harm to humans or animals must end.

I realize that these rites are not shared by all, and that much like all religious cultures, what is true of some is not true of all.

Still, the responsibility remains, as a society and a culture it is important to settle the pain caused with stricter laws and penalties especially where harm has gone unquestioned or unchallenged.

This includes:

Rites of pedophilia, the coercion of full covering of women in orthodox sects, any form of trafficking including filming, the profiting from human trafficking through webpages, the coercion of donations by the thousands per attendee, the exploitation of groups and children, any form of psychological warfare, especially sexual psychological warfare and forms of torture, human smuggling and the use of foreign labor, any form of spying, intelligence gathering or espionage, treason, stalking, political conspiracy, any form of war crime, eugenics campaigns, Noahide laws or other Jewish religious laws that seek to harm civilians, the digging of underground tunnels, and other strange experiences we have witnessed and that have become visible and popularized by the American people for protective reasons.

Where crime has been committed, criminal corrections should be enforced.

Still, our country remains peaceable toward our neutral civilians and our innocent.

My final position regarding "The Jewish Confederacy" and rogue "Jewish religious and societal experiences," is that it has become very evident, there is a legal battle ahead.
