Citizen Application: OSIRAM Movement Out in Force

The word is "Citizen," meaning for citizens.

Citizen is an app that was designed for emergency response, as well as "safety tracking for friends and families." — Citizen App

Instead, the application has become yet another platform in which OSIRAM activists "show solidarity" (their Cold War front) in force. Any caring citizen may become fair game for par. Their game? Hate speech. Citizen targeting. How far off track does this train go?

The goal of Citizen is to keep citizens safe, but that is not what it has become thanks to the new Cold War front that we must now put up with at every turn. As we do our best to navigate positive and important commentary, it feels as though we must weed through graffiti, dumpster fires, and angry, volatile abusers. Is that really the world they aim to create?

The truth is that we really cannot tell if these are real users or not. We can rest assured that a great deal are foreign. If not foreign, un-American.

Old-fashioned American values are hard to come by on the Citizen app. In fact, the very idea of values might just stir the hornet's nest. They are out to attack Americans, and this understanding has become very clear. Not only clear, but evident. As we do our best to consider all facets of the war, we comb through the commentary of the activists, and we document them too. Who knows what peachyrainbow54 or rudeovl9l will shout at the next caring citizen? They're making history right?

Though Citizen is not a police scanner, caring citizens may combine the two forms of communication to better understand the risks that our public servants take —day after day to ensure our safety. Not only is Citizen for caring citizens, but also for our public servants. At least, it was supposed to be.

Democrats, however, have different plans for American citizens and our public servants, very loud and boisterous violent abuse targeting. But are they really Democrats? Or have they become something very different? What are they? Assuredly, they have lost much of their humanity, which is what many of us thought they were supposed to be all about.

For now, we will just call them the OSIRAM abuse and violence movement, and we will have to navigate around them for the time being. As we do what Americans do best, we show up with love in our hearts, and we support the country and nation that we love. We'll show up for the right people. That is the American spirit.

Whatever the OSIRAM movement is, it simply is not "The American spirit." It is not US. The primary goal? Protect citizen safety. This sentiment is not negotiable, and we assuredly do not negotiate with OSIRAM.
