Did you know that paper is the color white? This is a white paper.

My first time advocating publicly for whites, Slavery Wars.

But it's me, I'm whites.

8.12.2025

I am only 39, yet in my short lifetime, I have witnessed a dwindling white population, culture shifts, mass demographic changes, and horrible organized crime firsthand. These were not small changes, dear blog readers, an 80%-100% decrease in Caucasians in some cities. On the receiving end of racism, I always took it, unchallenged, and reacted with empathy and compassion. I advocated for everyone but me, perhaps others relate. Push has come to shove, however, how much smaller can a human being become to make others feel comfortable? Let the research show, the anti-white movement was far more violent than we realized.

Regardless of the color of our skin, a war is a war, and a genocide is a genocide. There is no excuse for "Theological Decolonization, Genocide and Holocaust" of whites. Hate speech and racism against whites are not something we should ever tolerate. Neither should we tolerate mass oppression of a population because of the color of their skin. Many, like me, may have thought we were far beyond this extreme form of racism, but it seems a huge movement of very hateful people had another plan for the human race, especially white Europeans. They wanted us out of the game. That game was life.

So, here we are. Whites deserve a voice, too. I love my culture. I love generational Americans, and I love our well-kept, charming villages that keep our families safe, free and peaceful. I am white, I grew up in a predominantly white culture. White culture is my ancestry, and, it simply is who I am, I am white. Without whites, I have lost my heart and soul: Everything.

Do I feel that white culture vs. black culture is shallow? Absolutely. We do not choose who our parents are. People date, love is great, and there are many unknown forces at play. We are on a floating planet in the middle of the galaxy, and for those that believe in reincarnation, who knows what lifetime came before this one. We humans still have a lot to figure out. Still, witnessing a dwindling population is scary! Scary as heck actually. Without further adieu,

What is the Black KKK anyway?

With all powers combined.

I have included just a few articles in this post that should help synergize these understandings. However, in this blog, for the more motivated reader, I have included thousands of articles which will help glue this all together.

~ Furthermore ~ "The Wavelength." ~ What is the wavelength? ~ The wavelength that will help us move forward together, despite our race and the horrible crimes committed against us for the color of our skin. Hint: It is neither black nor white. It is a resonance of compassion, love, respect, and vulnerability. It is our connection to our humanity and each other. We are self-protective in this moment in history, I sure am, but I do hope we will find each other again and meet each other there, on ~ a positive wavelength. ~
