

Union of Saints – Faith Protection & “A Ticket”

Compassionate Ways to Say “This Goes Against My Faith”

- “I respect your perspective, but this doesn’t align with my beliefs.”
- “I’m guided by my faith in this area, so I’ll need to step back.”
- “That’s not something I can participate in, but I appreciate the conversation.”
- “I try to live in accordance with my values, and this feels outside of that for me.”
- “I honor where you’re coming from, and I hope you can respect where I stand as well.”
- “For personal and spiritual reasons, I need to decline.”

These approaches maintain dignity—for both you and the other person—without escalating tension.

Conversational Etiquette

The word etiquette comes from the French word:

- étiquette ;.) “Ay~Ticket.”

Originally, it referred to a “label” or “ticket,” particularly instructions posted in royal courts about proper conduct. Over time, it evolved to mean the customary code of polite behavior in society.

At its heart, etiquette is about consideration, mutual respect, and awareness. In conversations, this includes:

- Listening without interrupting
- Speaking truthfully but gently
- Respecting differences without needing to resolve them
- Knowing when to disengage peacefully

OZIRAH vs. OSIRAM — A Conceptual Reflection

While OZIRAH and OSIRAM philosophy are not yet widely established academic or historical terms, we can interpret them symbolically in a meaningful, reflective way through US:

- OZIRAH → represents order, alignment, inner peace, and spiritual balance
- OSIRAM → represents disruption, imbalance, confusion, or external pressure

Seen this way, the distinction becomes a personal compass:

- When something feels like OZIRAH, it supports your integrity, calm, and alignment
- When something feels like OSIRAM, it may disturb your balance or pull you away from your values

Protecting Your Personal Peace & Inner Balance

Protecting your inner world only requires understanding and consistency:

- Set gentle but firm boundaries
- Avoid over-explaining your beliefs
- Disengage when conversations become draining or misaligned
- Return to practices that restore you (faith, reflection, quiet, nature)

You might say:

- “I’m focusing on maintaining my peace, so I’m going to step away from this topic.”
- “I’ve learned to honor what keeps me grounded, and this doesn’t feel aligned.”

In the near future, we will offer pins and small pocket-sized cards for a nominal purchase, making it easier to simply gesture to the pin and offer a gentle reminder: “I am a Santa.”
