

Race-Based Political Action Committees Posing Risk to the White Population

White Political PACs: “I could not verify a currently active federal PAC that explicitly restricts membership or political support to white people as a racial group. That does not establish that no such organization exists.”

Any White groups are automatically labeled racist, Nazi, supremacist, or KKK-affiliated, and relentless targeting by left-wing activists leads to crime, violence, and even political murders. This is the stage of “anti-White” humanity we are in. It is “taboo” to stand up for White Americans. This is deeply disturbing to those who did their homework. The White population has been targeted by eugenics campaigns, rape campaigns, modern ghettoization, drug wars, and slavery campaigns, and is experiencing rapid population decline. Sadly, which many left activists have celebrated.

Political Action Committees Representing Black Americans

Purpose

This document identifies political action committees (PACs) and related political organizations that support Black American political representation, voter engagement, civic participation, and economic advancement in the United States.

A PAC is a political committee that raises or spends money to influence elections, subject to applicable campaign finance laws. Organizations may have different political affiliations, missions, and methods of supporting candidates or policy initiatives.

1. Congressional Black Caucus PAC (CBC PAC)

Purpose: Supports congressional candidates and political representation associated with the interests and policy priorities of Black Americans.

Official website:

<https://www.cbcpac.org/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00147512/>

2. BlackPAC

Purpose: Promotes Black voter engagement and political participation. Its stated priorities include voting rights, education, economic opportunity, environmental justice, criminal justice reform, and healthcare access.

Official website:

<https://blackpac.com/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00609388/>

3. Black America's Political Action Committee (BAMPAC)

Purpose: Supports political candidates and civic engagement. Its stated priorities include public education, economic opportunity, individual freedoms, family and community interests, and conservative policy principles.

Official website:

<https://bampac.org/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00300921/>

4. Black Action Fund

Purpose: Supports candidates whose policy priorities include employment, fair wages, access to capital, entrepreneurship, and wealth creation in Black communities. It is affiliated with the Black Economic Alliance.

Official website:

<https://www.blackaction.io/>

5. African Coalition Political Action Committee (ACPAC)

Purpose: Promotes civic and political participation among immigrant African communities, particularly in the Houston, Texas, area. Its stated mission includes political empowerment and community development.

Official website:

<https://africanpac.org/>

Organizational information:

<https://africanpac.org/about-us/>

6. Federal Election Commission Research

The Federal Election Commission (FEC) maintains public records of federally registered political committees. These records can be used to research committee registration, fundraising, spending, contributions, and independent expenditures.

Official PAC and party committee database:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committees/pac-party/>

Individual committee records:

- Congressional Black Caucus PAC: <https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00147512/>
- BlackPAC: <https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00609388/>
- Black America's PAC: <https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00300921/>

Conclusion

These organizations illustrate several approaches to political participation and representation among Black Americans and people of African descent. Their priorities and political positions differ, so their stated missions, candidate endorsements, financial disclosures, and current registration statuses should be examined individually.

This list is an introductory selection, not a complete directory of every PAC or political organization associated with Black American communities.

Political Action Committees Representing Hispanic and Latino Americans

Purpose

This document identifies political action committees (PACs) and related political organizations that support Hispanic and Latino political representation, voter participation, leadership, and community interests in the United States.

Hispanic and Latino Americans represent diverse national origins, political affiliations, cultural backgrounds, and policy priorities. The organizations listed below include different political perspectives and should not be assumed to represent every Hispanic or Latino American.

1. Hispanic Political Action Conference (HPAC)

Political orientation: Conservative and Republican-aligned.

Purpose: Mobilizes Hispanic voters around faith, family, border security, economic prosperity, and support for Republican candidates and political objectives.

Official website:

<https://hispanicpac.org/>

Source: Official organizational website.

2. Latino Victory Fund

Purpose: Supports Latino political representation and seeks to increase Latino participation in elected office. The organization supports candidates and political efforts aligned with its stated political objectives.

Official website:

<https://latinovictory.org/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00562777/>

3. Hispanic Leadership Fund Political Action Committee

Purpose: A political committee associated with Hispanic political advocacy. Its federal registration and financial disclosures can be examined through the Federal Election Commission.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00449009/>

Note: Review current filings before assuming the committee is actively fundraising or spending.

4. Hispanic Action Committee (H-PAC)

Purpose: A political committee registered with the Federal Election Commission.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00352872/>

Note: Its registration record identifies it as a nonqualified PAC. Review its most recent filings to determine its current activity and expenditures.

5. Pro Hispanic Political Action Committee, Inc.

Purpose: A political committee registered with the Federal Election Commission under this name.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00245746/>

Note: Consult current committee filings for information about its recent activity, financial transactions, and political spending.

6. Latino Leaders for Equality, Growth, Opportunity, Progressive Action & Change (LLEGO-PAC)

Purpose: A leadership PAC registered with the Federal Election Commission. Its financial records provide information about fundraising, disbursements, and contributions to other political committees.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00576975/>

Note: A leadership PAC is generally established by a politician or political leader to support other candidates and political activities. Its name alone does not establish the full scope of its current mission.

7. Federal Election Commission Research

The Federal Election Commission maintains searchable public records of federally registered PACs, including their registration details, financial reports, contributions, and expenditures.

Official PAC database:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committees/pac-party/>

Committee research guide:

<https://www.fec.gov/introduction-campaign-finance/how-to-research-public-records/pacs-parties-and-other-committees/>

Conclusion

These committees and organizations illustrate several approaches to Hispanic and Latino political participation in the United States. Their political orientations, organizational structures, and current levels of activity vary.

This is an introductory list, not a complete directory of every Hispanic or Latino PAC. Federal registration does not necessarily mean a committee is currently active, and some Hispanic advocacy organizations operate as nonprofits rather than political committees.

Jewish-American and Pro-Israel Political Action Committees in the United States

1. American Israel Public Affairs Committee Political Action Committee (AIPAC PAC)

Focus: Supports candidates for federal office who support the U.S.-Israel relationship. AIPAC is a pro-Israel advocacy organization, and its PAC engages in federal candidate contributions.

Official website:

<https://www.aipac.org/>

Federal Election Commission database:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committees/>

Search for “AIPAC PAC” in the committee database to review its registration and financial reports.

2. J Street PAC

Focus: Supports candidates who align with J Street's positions on U.S. policy toward Israel and the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. J Street advocates for a diplomatic approach and a two-state solution.

Official website:

<https://jstreet.org/pac/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00441949/>

The FEC identifies JStreetPAC as an active, qualified PAC. Its records provide fundraising and spending information.

3. NORPAC

Focus: A pro-Israel political action committee that supports candidates from both major political parties based on their positions concerning the U.S.-Israel relationship.

Official website:

<https://norpac.net/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00247403/>

The FEC lists NORPAC as an active, qualified PAC.

4. Republican Jewish Coalition Political Action Committee (RJC-PAC)

Focus: Supports Republican candidates and advances the Republican Jewish Coalition's political priorities, including its positions on Israel and U.S. foreign policy.

Official website:

<https://www.rjchq.org/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00345132/>

The FEC identifies RJC-PAC as an active, qualified PAC.

5. U.S. Israel PAC (USI PAC)

Focus: Supports candidates who favor a strong U.S.-Israel relationship.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00127811/>

The FEC lists USI PAC as an active, qualified PAC.

6. Democrats for Israel Los Angeles Federal PAC

Focus: Supports political participation and candidates aligned with its pro-Israel Democratic political objectives.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00761965/>

The FEC lists this committee as an active, nonqualified PAC. Review its latest filings for details about current financial activity.

7. J Street Action Fund

Focus: An independent-expenditure-only Super PAC associated with J Street. It can raise funds to support or oppose candidates through independent political expenditures, subject to applicable campaign finance laws.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00815753/>

The FEC identifies the committee as active. Its financial reports provide details about receipts and disbursements.

8. Federal Election Commission Research

The Federal Election Commission provides official public records for registered federal PACs, Super PACs, and other political committees.

PAC and party committee database:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committees/pac-party/>

PAC financial reports:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/reports/pac-party/>

These databases allow researchers to examine fundraising, expenditures, contributions, registration status, and committee filings.

Conclusion

The organizations listed here represent different political approaches to Jewish-American civic participation and U.S. policy toward Israel. Some are associated with Republican politics, others with Democratic politics, and others support candidates across party lines.

A pro-Israel organization is not necessarily a Jewish-American organization, and Jewish Americans do not share one political position or ideology. The organizations' stated missions and FEC records should be evaluated individually.

Muslim-American Political Action Committees in the United States

Purpose

This document identifies political action committees (PACs) and related political organizations that promote Muslim-American political participation, voter education, representation, and policy advocacy.

Muslim Americans represent diverse racial, ethnic, national, and political backgrounds. These organizations have different missions and political approaches and do not represent every Muslim American.

1. Emgage PAC

Focus: Muslim-American political representation, candidate endorsements, voter education, civil rights, religious freedom, and community participation.

Emgage PAC endorses and financially supports candidates based on its stated policy priorities and candidate assessments. Its website publishes endorsements and voter education materials.

Official website:

<https://emgagepac.org/>

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committees/pac-party/>

refs={["turn658123search2","turn658123search5"]} />

2. Illinois Muslim Political Action Committee (IMPAC)

Focus: Muslim-American civic participation, political representation, religious freedom, and opposition to anti-Muslim discrimination.

IMPAC describes itself as a bipartisan political action committee that supports candidates aligned with its stated priorities.

Official website:

<https://illinoismuslimpac.org/>

Source: IMPAC official website. <Cite refs={"turn658123search7"}/>

3. American Muslim Public Affairs Committee (AMPAC)

Focus: Political engagement and participation among Muslim Americans.

The Federal Election Commission lists the American Muslim Public Affairs Committee as an independent-expenditure-only Super PAC. This is distinct from a traditional PAC because a Super PAC may raise unlimited funds for independent political expenditures but cannot contribute directly to federal candidates.

Official website:

<https://ampacusa.org/>

4. Muslim American Political Action Committee (MAPAC)

Focus: Muslim-American participation in political and governmental affairs.

The Federal Election Commission maintains a committee record under this name. Its available historical registration information dates to 2004, so researchers should verify current filings and activity before treating it as an active, operational organization.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00403212/>

Source: Federal Election Commission. <Cite refs={"turn658123search4"}/>

5. Muslim American Political Action Committee (2026 registration)

The FEC also lists a committee named Muslim American Political Action Committee, with a separate registration number from MAPAC.

Registration date: January 6, 2026.

Committee status shown in the FEC database: Active, quarterly, nonqualified PAC.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00933176/>

Because the names are similar, verify each committee's registration number, officers, filings, and financial activity before assuming the organizations are connected.

6. Historical American Muslim Alliance Political Action Committee

The Federal Election Commission records an American Muslim Alliance Political Action Committee associated with the American Muslim Alliance. The committee is listed as administratively terminated, so it should be treated as a historical record rather than a currently operating PAC.

This database can be used to identify additional committees and verify their current status.

Conclusion

Muslim-American political participation includes organizations that support candidates, provide voter education, advocate on civil rights, and encourage participation in elections. Their political approaches vary, and some organizations focus on a particular state or region rather than operating nationally.

The organizations listed here are not an exhaustive directory. Registration status, committee structure, fundraising, and spending should be verified through official filings.

Chinese-American and Asian American Political Action Committees in the United States

Purpose

This document identifies political action committees (PACs) and related political organizations associated with Chinese-American political participation, Asian American representation, civic engagement, and public policy.

Chinese-American organizations are distinct from broader Asian American organizations. Some committees focus on a particular community, while others advocate for people with roots across East, South, and Southeast Asia. Their political affiliations and policy priorities vary.

1. Chinese American Patriots Alliance

Purpose: A political committee registered with the Federal Election Commission.

Federal registration: Active hybrid PAC, nonqualified, as listed in the FEC database.

Registration date: August 15, 2022.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00822858/>

Financial research note: The FEC's displayed financial summary for January 1, 2025, through June 30, 2026, reports no receipts or disbursements during that period. Review later filings for updates.

Source: Federal Election Commission. <Cite refs={"turn407233search0"}/>

2. Chinese American Leadership Political Action Committee

Purpose: A political committee established to participate in U.S. electoral politics.

Current status: The FEC lists this committee as terminated. It should therefore be treated as a historical committee rather than a currently operating PAC.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00490961/>

Source: Federal Election Commission. <Cite refs={"turn407233search5"}/>

3. Asian American Political Action Committee (AAPAC)

Purpose: A political committee registered with the Federal Election Commission. Its name indicates a broad Asian American constituency rather than a specifically Chinese-American constituency.

Registration date: June 3, 2026.

FEC status: Active, quarterly, nonqualified PAC, according to the available committee record.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00952515/>

Financial research note: For May 28, 2026, through June 30, 2026, the FEC summary reports $12,050 in receipts and $9,355 in disbursements. These figures reflect that reporting period only.

Source: Federal Election Commission. <Cite refs={"turn407233search1"}/>

4. Asian American Advocacy Fund PAC

Purpose: An independent-expenditure-only Super PAC associated with Asian American political advocacy.

A Super PAC may raise unlimited funds for independent political expenditures, but it cannot contribute directly to federal candidates. Its political spending must remain independent of candidates' campaigns.

FEC status: Active Super PAC, according to the available FEC record.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00739557/>

Financial research note: The FEC summary reports approximately $41,796 in receipts and $80,948 in disbursements for January 1, 2025, through June 30, 2026.

Source: Federal Election Commission. <Cite refs={"turn407233search2"}/>

5. Asian American Action Fund

Purpose: Supports Asian American political participation and representation. Its political activities are associated with Democratic candidates and policy priorities.

FEC status: Active, qualified PAC, according to the available FEC record.

Federal Election Commission records:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committee/C00351031/>

Source: Federal Election Commission. <Cite refs={["turn407233search4"]}/>

6. Federal Election Commission Research

The Federal Election Commission maintains public records of federal political committees, including registration information, fundraising, contributions, expenditures, and independent political spending.

Official PAC and party committee database:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committees/pac-party/>

General committee search:

<https://www.fec.gov/data/committees/>

These resources allow researchers to search by committee name, registration number, election cycle, committee type, and financial activity.

Conclusion

The organizations listed above illustrate the distinction between Chinese-American political committees and broader Asian American political organizations. A committee's name alone does not establish its membership, the backgrounds of its donors, or the views of the wider community.

Registration status and financial activity should be verified using current FEC filings. This document is an introductory list, not a complete directory of all Chinese-American or Asian American political organizations.
