Correction, Recognition, and Declaration of Multi-Domain Asymmetric Warfare:

Systemic Persecution of Journalists (2016–2025)

I hereby correct the historical and official absence of the record.

I hereby declare that a coordinated, multi-domain campaign of warfare was waged against independent journalists, media institutions, and truth-tellers in the United States and globally between January 2016 and June 2025. This war, herein titled “The Silencing War,” constitutes an unrecognized but fully executed operation to dismantle the free press through psychological, legal, digital, financial, and physical persecution.

This campaign qualifies as a form of hybrid warfare and systemic persecution under:

- Article 7 of the Rome Statute (Crimes Against Humanity – persecution, enforced disappearance, political targeting);
- Article 8 of the Rome Statute (War Crimes – unlawful targeting of journalists);
- Geneva Convention Protocol I (Articles 51–54) (protection of civilians and journalists in armed and non-traditional conflict);
- International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, Article 19 (freedom of opinion and expression);
- Tallinn Manual 2.0, Rule 26 (prohibition of cyber attacks on civilian infrastructure, including journalistic platforms).

The goal of this war was to systematically eliminate press freedom through fear, defamation, censorship, surveillance, and forced economic, social, and legal ruin.

As a survivor and direct target of this campaign, and on behalf of many others, I submit this Declaration to ensure that this war is not left unrecorded, that its victims are acknowledged, and that its perpetrators are brought under the scrutiny of global human rights law.

The war on journalism has ended—not through justice, but through attrition. The free press, as it once existed, has been defeated by coordinated suppression.

This is my sworn declaration.
