Extra Attention To Detail Part 2

- All of the bedroom have been tip tested at Veritas in Pueblo Mexico.
- An eleven millimeter MDF back panel on "all" products. This allows wood to float and prevent season splits.
- We passed the anti tip certification by adding this.
- One of the benefits of having the MDF back panel that is thick, it gives us better stability for mounting the drawer glides in the back of the piece. This is why we've gone through the entire line, not just bedroom, adding this back panel.
- The full extension glides are now three quarter extension glides. Upgraded steel ball bearing glides versus plastic ball bearings for longer use.
- Use specially cured Brazilian pine which is makes a better finished product than Mexican lumber allowing for less waste in production and a more attractive finished product.
- Knots are limited in size for the wood integrity. Additionally the knots are treated so they do not have sap leakage.
- The wood is treated before finishing color coats with a lacquer to prevent future wood splits.

English Dovetail drawer construction matters in quality constructed furniture.

- Full Box Drawer construction
- Strength & durability: The interlocking nature gives good resistance to being pulled apart, which is especially important in drawers that get frequent use.
- Craftsmanship expression: Because the dovetail is often visible, it showcases the joiner's skill and can be an indicator of higher-end construction.
- Historical / aesthetic value: In antiques or premium furniture lines, the presence of properly executed English dovetails can be a hallmark of quality.
