

PHHS FOUNDATION

The past and the present coming together for the future.

May 2021

Foundation President's Message

It looks like there may be a light at the end of the tunnel for our world of quarantine and isolation. Time for us to rejoin society with caution due to the unknown and Covid-19 variants. Time to slowly, with caution, share our talents and passions with others.

Although I never personally met Rev. Ed Sthokal, a Jesuit priest who passed away during the pandemic in August 2020, I've heard of him from many men who held him—and his philosophy—in high regard. It is a philosophy that so many of us who support our Foundation share. He felt that we all have ownership of a variety of gifts and we should share those gifts, no matter what they are: wealth, academic, emotional, physical or any other skills.

Rev. Sthokal stated "Show me what you give your time and attention to, and I'll show you what you love." The Foundation supporters have fond memories of Patrick Henry High School, the school staff, classmates and their education. Foundation members who volunteer their time, make financial donations and pay attention to what is happening at the school do so out of love for PHHS. When I use the term Foundation, I'm including all who have attended, worked at or live in the surrounding community.

Many have continued to contribute throughout the pandemic so that we can continue our mission to support staff and students. We will be able to award several scholarships to students who plan to continue their education at trade schools or colleges.

But, in the words of the Rev. Sthokal, we must follow his lead and "Go as far as you can go. Just as far as you can go. And then reach for outside help." So, we continue to push as far and as hard as we can and now we are reaching out to you for your help.

What help can we use? We can use input of new ideas, contributions to our newsletter, recommendations for the Hall of Fame, and of course, your financial contributions. Feel free to contribute according to your passion whether it is band, athletics, scholarships, a specific classroom, newspapers, solar projects, or the general fund in honor/memory of a beloved teacher or classmate.

If you are not in a position to give financially, we would be grateful for your time and your attention by joining the Foundation Board (send email to president@phhsfoundation.org), and/or reach out to the school to share your strengths with our current Patriots in the classroom (go to website for volunteer application: <https://henry.mpls.k12.mn.us/volunteering>).

Enjoy your summer and hopefully we can all gather again in the fall.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Many of the educators and students at Henry High School could not wait to end 2020 and begin 2021. We could not imagine a more stressful time in our lives than what we experienced in 2020, and we all believe things would not get worse. We all hoped for better days ahead.

I believe better days are ahead. We cannot sit back and wait for them; we must create them ourselves. That is what I think of when I think about the staff and students at Henry High School. We did not sit back; we went for it!

Educators learned new technology skills to engage our students. They communicated often with students and families to ensure they were on top of things. They attended seminars and professional development that helped them along the way. They collaborated with each other and they held each other up. They went for it! They did not stop, nor did they quit. When a curve ball was thrown at them, they curved with it. They went for it!

Our students showed a lot of grit this year. They continued to show up and do the best they could. Many had multiple responsibilities and still showed up. Several of our seniors stayed focus on their goal to go to college. Through the midst of everything, many of them completed the college applications process and were accepted to several colleges. Nothing was going to stop them! I am so proud of them!

On April 12th we are expecting over 300 hundred students in our building for in-person learning while nearly 600 students decided to continue distance learning for the remainder of the year. This will present another challenge for the educators and students. To teach distance learning and in person students at the same time will be a huge undertaking. This will be an eight-week mountain to climb, but I am convinced this will be another example of how the educators and students will persevere. There is no doubt that we can do this.

As we finish the last several weeks of school year 2020-2021, it is my hope that we do not focus on what we lost, but more importantly what we gained. I am inspired by many and if you saw what I saw this past year with our staff and students, you would be inspired too.

Yours Truly,

Principal Yusuf Abdullah

SCHOLARSHIPS, WISH LISTS & EVENTS

Scholarships

The PHHS Foundation has provided money this spring for five scholarships with the help of your donations:

- The Dan Schmidt Memorial Scholarship: $1000 for a football player
- The Gary A. Foss Scholarship: $1000 for an African American male
- Patrick Henry High School Foundation: two scholarships for $2500 each
- Patrick Henry High School Foundation: one scholarship for $1500 for a student to attend a technical school

The scholarship process begins with the senior students completing an application that includes their post-secondary plans, any awards they have already received from schools or organizations, and a statement about themselves noting any significant issues or struggles they want the committee to know.

After applications are received by the committee, the committee collects information on all the applicants including schools applied to, awards received, GPA, and college entrance exam scores. The committee meets to finalize the scholarships being given and the criteria for each. During the decision process, one guiding principle for the committee is to distribute the awards equitably, making sure that students who have already won significant awards are not given monies they do not need. The committee also looks to carefully match students and their proposed majors with scholarships related to a field of study when applicable. Because there are many students competing for an award, the committee has instituted a scoring system to make the process more objective.

Once decisions are made, committee members may check with teachers not on the committee to reaffirm the students are genuinely deserving of the award based on their commitment to excellence in the classroom and their treatment of other people. After that, award winners are notified.

Members of the committee include, but are not limited to, school counselors, teachers of seniors, administrators and members of the College and Career Center.

LYNDON CARLSON—SPOTLIGHT

From time to time, we'd like to bring to you articles about former Patrick Henry High School teachers and staff. In this newsletter, we are spotlighting Mr. Lyndon Carlson, former teacher and elected member of the Minnesota House of Representatives. Geneva Kubal provided this article.

Lyndon Carlson was born in Minneapolis and raised on the south side in what he considered a typical working-class family. His father attended Roosevelt High School and later worked for Burlington Northern Railroad. His mother attended South High School. He was one of five children, and his paternal grandmother lived with the family until she passed away. Mr. Carlson's parents were engaged in politics but were not politically active. His family had lively discussions about not only politics, but rivalries as his parents attended rival high schools. Those early days seemed to move Mr. Carlson towards educational and political interests.

Mr. Carlson attended Minneapolis public schools and was attending Roosevelt High School when his family moved to Bloomington, where he graduated from Bloomington High School in 1958. Midway through college, he made the decision to become a teacher. He attended Mankato State and received a Bachelor of Science Degree with a Major in Social Studies. He met Carole in early 1968 when they were both teaching. They married later that same year. When they started their family, Carole left teaching until the youngest started kindergarten. They have three children: Lyndon Jr. works for the railroad like his grandfather, Tanya is a teacher like her parents, but Philip took a different path and is an aspiring actor and moved to Los Angeles. Lyndon and Carole have been married for over 52 years. Carole has been with Lyndon every step of the way. First as a teacher, then as a homemaker and as a campaign manager. Both found that learning, teaching, and public service were not only enjoyable, but rewarding.

Learning and teaching have provided many positive experiences for Mr. Carlson. A subject matter most enjoyable for him not only to learn, but also to teach, was American History. The lively discussions his family had while he was growing up about politics and current events would encourage him not only to become an activist, but a representative in state government. Mr. Carlson taught for a total of 33 years, but 29 years were split equally between Patrick Henry and Edison High Schools. In 1972, Mr. Carlson ran for and was elected to the Minnesota House Of Representatives. After 48 years, he retired from the House at the end of this term, December 31, 2020.

Mr. Carlson enjoyed working with young people. He also used his time in the House to help create opportunities for young people and education. He felt personal success when students achieved successes in and outside of the classroom. He also knew early in his career that responsibilities and challenges at home could help children learn but could also hold them back. For example, early in his career where he taught in a rural community, Lyndon assigned homework for the students. The following day, he discovered most of the students were unable to complete an assignment that he thought they should easily be able to finish. Students told him that when they get home from school, they must do their chores on the farm. This left little time or energy for homework at the end of the day. From this point forward, Mr. Carlson considered what challenges each student might face and tried to create the best possible educational environment for those specific needs. In his experience, everyone has potential; the task is to find the best way to unlock it. This would provide for a challenging and rewarding career. Continued on next page...

Mr. Carlson, in hindsight, stated he would choose a teaching career again. It is a great career path. As a teacher, he was able to maintain his position in the Minneapolis Public Schools while pursuing public office.

Mr. Carlson would teach for 33 years mostly in the fall trimester and take a leave of absence to fulfill duties in public office during the winter and spring trimesters. While teaching, he found time to coach tennis, cross country running and skiing. While working with students, some would "Cut Up". He used these times and others to learn about what interested the student. He would get to know them better and try to find common interests to help bridge any gap and to create an overall positive school experience. During campaigns, Mr. Carlson would sometimes knock on the door of former students. This is when he discovered firsthand the impact he made on their lives as they would share memories during these short encounters.

Throughout his life, Mr. Carlson also found time to volunteer. He worked on the campaign to help elect Hubert Humphrey for President. He also spent time on his local YMCA Board. Later, his efforts were spent with PRISM, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit founded by people who were concerned about local hungry and homeless families. They provide healthy food, clothing, and housing stability. While he has not had as much time to pursue his hobbies like travel, or spending time with family (especially grandkids), after retirement from public service, he plans to make up for lost opportunities.

As Mr. Carlson reflected on his career and achievements, he said he had no regrets and feels blessed. During times of great conflict like the Civil Rights Era, Vietnam War and now the global pandemic and civil unrest, these events provide time for not only dialog but action for change to improve our societies and communities. Mr. Carlson and his wife plan to be a part of positive change well into the future.

Patrick Henry High School In The News

Patrick Henry High School was spotlighted in local newspapers and a national publication recently. Below are some highlights from the published articles. Thank you to Susan Curnow Breedlove who provided the first three articles.

Loppet Foundation Partnership with Henry High:

This past winter, Patrick Henry High School partnered with The Loppet Foundation to offer outdoor winter activities to the students of the community. The Loppet Foundation creates opportunities for year-round outdoor adventures in the Minneapolis area. It is headquartered in Theodore Wirth Park.

The intention for the partnership of Henry High and the Loppet was to create engagement opportunities for PHHS staff and students to break the monotony of everyday pandemic restrictions, build relationships while learning, and have fun.

Henry student-produced video news program goes public:

Who better to give you news from the high school located in Camden than the students who attend it themselves? Just go to the Henry High website and click on the tab that is titled "News." From there open "Henry News Hour" and you will view a student-created news show.

Members of Video 2 classes will provide items such as school sports, youth issues, the Robotic team, counseling department, movie reviews, community news, and opinions about distance learning versus in-person learning. Check out the episodes at: <https://sites.google.com/mpls.k12.mn.us/alex-conover/henry-news-hour>. World famous artist, painter, sculpturist Rodger Brodin, 1940-1995:

Rodger Brodin, a 1958 graduate of Henry High school, was featured in the January 27, Camden Community News. Eighteen of his sculptures stand in parks and buildings in the Twin Cities area, including "The Camden Lumberman" statue above the Shingle Creek Pond in Webber Park. Celebration as Protest:

2020 Patrick Henry graduates Datelle Straub, Avery Lewis and Tita Harness-Reed were highlighted in a May 30, 2020 National Geographic article by Nina Strohlic. Because of the pandemic, students were not allowed to walk the graduation stage, but they wanted to show Black excellence in the community. They donned their caps and gowns, and while carrying their diplomas, peacefully protested the death of George Floyd. We Depend on Your Support

The Patrick Henry High School Foundation seeks to create an environment where students, families, teachers, and staff are empowered to shape the world in which they live. This environment ensures all students have equal access to quality materials and superior technologies. We see a world where our students excel by capturing the spirit of innovation and carving the path of our future. Our goal is to inspire personal growth and development that builds upon a foundation of skills, knowledge, and abilities, so they are equipped to become the future leaders of our society.
